

Train-the-Trainer Crisis Management Tools for Children

Empowering conversations that need to happen!

Our stories focus on social issues that affect kids, such as: violence, abandonment, living on the street, gang affiliation and even sexual abuse.

How do we do this in a sensitive non-threatening way?

Productive dialogue
Wordplay
characters with a different anatomy interaction
engage kids in helping the characters

BENEFITS:

- increased self-esteem
- improved critical thinking skills
- better literacy and communication skills
- more empathy for others and ability to share feelings,
- positive interventions such as meaningful dialogue with a trusted adult
- awareness of resources in the community
- development of a safety plan and other practical exercises
- 'assisted-help' concepts that result in better outcomes for their future

- TOOLS FOR teachers, counsellors, social workers, child psychologists or anyone working with children.
- Our professional focus group critiques the resources and provide feedback and guidance.
- Together we have created resources that provide a best-practice approach to those who work with children

Our concept of "assisted-help" gives children a voice...a way to express themselves.
