BIOGRAPHY

Fawn Einarson-Nielsen

Fawn is a social entrepreneur who started 'Hear My Heart Books Inc.' to focus on social issues. Fawn tackles brave conversations for the 21st century. If your organization is looking for someone to broach difficult topics and/or situations because of a power imbalance - then Fawn is the speaker for you.

Learn how to correct the imbalance and create a healthy, productive workplace and/or classroom.

Fawn hails from Saskatoon, where she lives with her husband. They have two children, two grandchildren and two four-legged children.

Drawing from her personal experiences and those living in crisis and/or difficult situations, Fawn offers unique insights and solutions through her Keynotes, In-class readings, workshops and Train-the-Trainer sessions.

Fawn's background includes:

- Emergency care; Ministry of Social Services
- Support to incarcerated men/women coming from gang-affiliated backgrounds
- Program Facilitator; women transitioning from the justice system
- Group facilitator; survivors of childhood sexual abuse, including Residential School survivors and those living with D.I.D. (Dissociative Identity Disorder).
- Soft skills Facilitator; Praxis International
- Presenter; Rural and Remote Education and First Nations School Administrators Conferences, 2014

Fawn has worked with a variety of demographics and age groups.
