Description

Cypress Oil is known for being calming, soothing, and making life seem to flow better. It can aid in pulling excess fluids from your body, thus improving circulation, as well as sorting out coughs and bronchitis. You will find Cypress quite often in spas and in use by massage therapists because of its grounding effect as well as its energizing and refreshing aroma. Cypress should never be taken internally, but can safely be diffused as well as applied topically. Cypress can help with oily skin issues due to its monoterpene content. It can also assist with varicose veins. Cypress has an energizing and grounding effect on the emotions and mind, making it a good choice to diffuse during times of loss or change.
