Measurements in cm

What it all means:

First, the Obitsu 47cm, despite being in between the 45 and 50cm in height and from the same company, is NOT proportioned like a teen body. It seems more like an adult female body that is coincidentally the same height, but not in 1/3 scale.

The Obitsu 45cm and Volks DDP bodies share the most similarities, being almost the same in all measurements except the DDP has slightly longer arms/legs.

The Obitsu 50cm is still pretty close! Most measurements are 1cm or less from each other, and the ones that aren't are ones that are easiest to adjust (leg/arm length). When make a pattern, I build in wiggle room for the back closure since things like thick Velcro take up a lot more room than snaps or hook closures. This means if you aren't using thick Velcro, a slightly larger doll (up to 1cm larger) can be clothed with the same pattern without adjusting it.
