▲ Faux Sho'

Where fur is concerned, I never wear the real thing. Not only does this faux-fur coat (which I'm wearing on the cover) feel like a cloud—the pockets and hood are lined in velvet, and the exterior is supple—but the midlength length and ruching make it extra flattering. (Originally $425, now 50 percent off with code OPRAH; fabulousofurs.com)

▲ A Movie-able Feast

I co-produced the hundred-foot journey, so it might be biased, but I love this cross-cultural film about two rival restaurants (one Indian, one French) located across the street from each other in the French countryside. Hello, food porn! Not to mention a deliciously tart performance by Helen Mirren. (Blu-ray Combo Pack, $40; amazon.com)

▼ I'm with the Band

When my hairstylist Andre Walker's not around, I rely on wide headbands to help me look pulled together. But it's hard to find one that looks good and stays in place. These soft, stretchy bands get the job done. (Originally $10 each, now 50 percent off with code OPRAH; omi-jay.com)

◀ Booting Up

These may look like the shearing boots everyone and her mother has grown to love, but a hidden, 3/4-inch inner wedge gives you a little extra something something. (La Cienega wedge boots, $145; koolaburra.com)

◀ Nailed It

Leave the trendy colors to the teens: This set of rich polishes offers flattering-on-everyone reds, pinks, and blues. They're also vegan, cruelty-free, and made without any five major nail polish toxins. (Coco Girl Set, originally $144, now 50 percent off with code OPRAH; colorshop.us)

▲ Swing Sets

You won't believe how light these stunning statement earrings are: The secret? Glass, acrylic, and resin pronged sparklers are mounted on a fabric and leather—not metal—base, so they won't drag down your lobes. (Khepri Large Drop earrings, $125 a pair; sasanadai.com)
