

Tucked away in the heart of Greenwich Village,
you will find the quiet, well-kept, residential Jones Street.

Like a steady hand amidst an artist's enclave, Gevril's Jones St. Collection is aptly named and dependably designed with a sense of purpose.

The Jones St. Collection features a 45mm round stainless steel case with a textured sun ray and sandblasted dial.
Designed as a multi-circular structure with a date wheel on the dial, and a single hand time indicator.

The polished bezel and brushed case maintain a clean appearance for the refined and reliable man.

This limited edition watch comes in two-toned or silver SS bracelet with deployment buckle and an exhibition case back reminiscent of city windows.

Trusted, secure, but with no lack of cultural relevance, Jones St. is the classic timepiece that straddles the line between art and commerce.

Steady, never boring – the Jones St. Men's Collection.

Instruction Manual

Winding

The Gevril Jones Street watch features a Swiss Made automatic mainspring movement which can hold a 40 hour power reserve.

For first time use: watch should be wound manually 30 clockwise turns with crown in position A.

Watch will then rewind itself automatically while being worn with regular hand movement. If worn daily the watch can be left overnight without movement and will keep time. If watch is left more then 30 hours without enough movement the watch will need to be wound manually again as in first time use.

Setting Time and Date

To set the Time pull crown to position C and turn either direction.

To set the Date first make sure the hour hand isn't between 9 and 1 (setting the date on an automatic watch while the hour hand is between 9 and 1 can break the movement as the gears are already engaged to the date gears). Pull crown to position B and turn clockwise.

After setting the time & date always make sure the crown is in position A to ensure water resistance.
