Yorkville is simultaneously handsome and striking, yet ultimately classic and understated. A Swiss Automatic movement in a confident 43mm case, date at 3 o’clock, a handy rotating bezel, and prominent time markers allow Yorkville to exude the quiet confidence that only exists from being highly sought after. Instruction Manual

Winding

The Gevril Yorkville features a Swiss Made automatic mainspring movement which can hold a 40 hour power reserve.

For first time use: watch should be wound manually 30 clockwise turns with crown in position A.

Watch will then rewind itself automatically while being worn with regular hand movement. If worn daily the watch can be left overnight without movement and will keep time.

If watch is left more then 30 hours without enough movement the watch will need to be wound manually again as in first time use.

Setting Time and Date

To set the Time pull crown to position C and turn either direction.

To set the Date first make sure the hour hand isn't between 9 and 1 (setting the date on an automatic watch while the hour hand is between 9 and 1 can break the movement as the gears are already engaged to the date gears). Pull crown to position B and turn clockwise.

After setting the time & date always make sure the crown is in position A to ensure water resistance.

Rotating Bezel Feature

To set a time limit, turn the bezel counter-clockwise to the desired time.
