Here at Pamela Mann Limited, we are passionate about influencing and evolving the hosiery industry.

Currently, nylon yarn is used to produce the majority of hosiery, which is both unsustainable and contains an environmentally harmful petroleum based process, which inevitably leads to damaging carbon emissions.

Pamela Mann's hosiery is created from pre and post-consumer nylon waste which is a process which is more environmentally friendly than the traditional method. We have begun to reduce energy and water consumption, but we are aware this is a long and ever changing journey which we are far from finishing. With our passion and desire to improve the sustainability of our products we are confident that we will make a difference.
