TASTING NOTES

STEVE BROWN
TARBERT
ISLE OF HARRIS

"I'm originally from Glasgow so the aroma of peat smoke is a very island thing for me now I live here. I get spices on the nose and a lovely heat to it sipping it neat. There's a barbeque-like smoke on the palate too and crisp, sharp apple flavours, like the fruit we used to pick from trees on the way home from school. A bit of water really opens it up and I'm reminded of sweet Scottish 'tablet'. I always make my own tablet, my Granny from Cork in Ireland taught me how. Overall, it's very smooth, smoky, sweet, and quite refreshing."

STORY

MIKE DONALD
STORYTELLER

"Although we are poised on the cusp on meteorological spring, snow still dusts the heights of the Clisham mountain and the surrounding Harris hills. Far below, across the bay at Ardhassaig lies our whisky warehouses where Domhnall, Billy, and Scott stay busy behind the scenes looking after our precious casks. As far as workplaces go, few come much finer, with peace, quiet, and some of the most spectacular views on the island to take in when the tea-break comes around. Meantime, just a few miles down the road, our bottling team are setting to work on Batch 12 in good time for the next release of The Hearach on the 26th of March."
