*An audio magazine of contemporary culture
& Christian conviction*

- 1 Introduction
- 2 Donald Kraybill on how the Amish “negotiate” with modernity as communities by making decisions about the uses of technologies
- 3 Thaddeus Kozinski on the dubious claim within liberalism that public life can be well-ordered by entirely neutral (non-transcendent) principles
- 4 David Bentley Hart on how “two-tiered Thomism” deviates from historic Christian understanding of the relationship between God and Creation
- 5 Nigel Biggar on recognizing problems with the notion of “natural rights,” without denying the importance of rights understood as granted within social and political contexts
- 6 Ravi Scott Jain on reconfiguring science and the teaching of science within the framework of natural philosophy, natural history, and natural science
- 7 Jason Baxter on how C. S. Lewis’s imagination was shaped by texts from the Middle Ages

Many of the books we reference are available from our friends at Eighth Day Books: www.eighthdaybooks.com or 1.800.841.2541.
