MAGNETIC LETTERS

Did you know that magnetic letters are a powerful literacy learning tool? Magnetic letters can help build alphabet fluency and support advanced readers in learning decoding skills.

Here are a few activities for beginning readers:

1. Write a student's name on a card and have them make their name with magnetic letters. Repeat until they can do this without the model.
2. Have students match upper- and lowercase letters.
3. Have students sort letters by the letters that are tall or round.
4. Have students match the letters to the ABC Chart Card.

Once students know their letters you can begin to use magnetic letters for word study/decoding activities. First, organize the magnetic letters on letter trays to help you prepare for and clean up word study lessons quickly. Students will learn alphabetical order by finding and returning letters to the tray.

Here are a few activities you can use the trays and letters for:

1. Making Words: Have students take a set of letters they will need to make new words (for example, remove a, c, m, n, s, and t. Tell students to use three letters and make cat. Then have them change it to make can, man, mat, and sat.
2. Breaking Words: Write a word on the dry-erase easel and have students take a set of letters they will need to make that word. Have them break the word apart into known parts (for example, splinter: spl-in-ter). Repeat with one or two more similar words.

STUDENT WRITING JOURNALS

Student Journals with 100 or 70 pages, 8.5" x 11" with Wire-O® Binding. Binding lies flat for any page, and pages do not fall out as they can with plastic finger bindings. Custom-made with extra-heavy 70# unlined white drawing paper, so permanent markers will not bleed through, and you can use both sides of the page. Front cover is blank white for students to draw and label; the heavy chipboard back cover protects pages during daily use.

READING RECOVERY STARTER KIT

With our starter kits, we have curated all the materials you need to set up for Reading Recovery®. Each kit provides a teacher with all the materials needed to support instruction, gathered into a single kit.

Reading Recovery Starter Kit

KIT006 $245.00

“ The Reading Recovery® Starter Kit is an excellent item to purchase for teachers-in-training. I love this kit—it’s such a time-saver when ordering, since it contains all the essential supplies in one product number instead of searching for everything individually. What makes this kit even better is it contains all the “best” items for teachers to use: the nonslip foam magnetic letters, the sturdy send-home book bags, the easy-to-use timer, and plenty of markers for the whiteboard and writing books. ”

WHY SEND BOOKS HOME?

Reading is food for the brain! From the time a child enters school, teachers encourage 20 minutes of daily reading at home. Send-Home Book Bags provide a safe, convenient way for students to carry books home.

Picture books, early readers, and more complex texts all help students develop a love of reading. If they read for 20 minutes every day, by sixth grade a student will have read for 851 hours. They will have read 1.8 million words a year. Frequent readers often read 44 books a year.

Daily reading will help the brain make connections between the written and spoken word, widening vocabulary in the process. Research shows that students who read for 20 or more minutes a day score in the 90th percentile on standardized tests. Seeing the written word increases spelling ability.

Reading broadens a student's world. A book can introduce new ideas, take a student on an adventure, or provide information about a topic. A student can join the world of a character, learn about a beloved pet, or discover a new skill.

Reading helps your memory make connections between what is already known about the topic of a story and its content. New information learned through reading further strengthens a growing network of knowledge. Reading provides one of the most enriching and complex brain activities available in life.
