Hollywood Sign Section

Of all the screen used movie props that exist, the historic Hollywood sign in the hills has been in more movies than any other. It is shown on the front cover of many DVDs, shown in the background in many movie scenes, and even a key prop in others.

Hank Berger purchased the original Hollywood sign directly from the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce after its demolition in 1978, and it has remained in storage for over 25 years. Producer Dan Bliss acquired the Hollywood sign from Berger and owns the remaining pieces today. In November 2004, the Hollywood History Museum purchased a large unaltered section of the letter H from Mr. Bliss. This section is now part of the museum's permanent collection located at the intersection of Hollywood Boulevard and Highland Avenue in Hollywood. At that same time, four other large unaltered pieces were sold at auction to private individuals.

The Hollywood sign has been featured in countless films, and is recognized throughout the world as the one true icon of the entertainment industry. This is a section of the original sign that stood on the hill from 1923-1978 and is a piece of Hollywood history that will be remembered for all time.
