

Stars jostle for a place at pop-up restaurant table

Louis Walsh is usually chomping at the bit to slag off Simon Cowell about his overly white teeth, but when I bumped into him on Saturday, he was chomping into a delicious rib eye steak.

Louis was one of Sinead Ryan's VIP guests at the 28byAldi pop-up restaurant, which won Best Feature at the Taste of Dublin event.

Poor soul, Louis couldn't give complete attention to his steak prepared for him by Michelin star chef Cormac Rowe from Mount Juliet because he was so busy standing in for photos with his many fans.

"It was like a pal audience from the window of 28byAldi," laughed Sinead, of Presence PR, who also hosted bearded rugby star Gordon D'Arcy and his wife Aoife

Cogan along with fellow Irish rugby player Cian Healy and his model girlfriend Holly Carpenter who was in the perfect spot as she is a big Paleo diet fan.

Glam in a Goat dress from Arnotts, cosmetic doctor Dr. Katherine Mulrooney was spotted chatting with Ross Lewis from Chapter one. "I was delighted to meet Ross because Chapter One is one of my favourite restaurants," said Katherine who looks after the facial needs of all the top socialites.

Her top tip is to stay out of the mid-day sun and this weekend, she is attending the FACE convention in London where all the talk will be about Dracula facelifts. More of that anon...

— BP

VIP: Dr Katherine Mulrooney
LEON FARREL