Usage Guide

This Training Manual is a reference guide for performing exercises with the GoFit Resist-a-Bar, to be used with GoFit Rubber Resistance Training products as a modular component system.

IMPORTANT NOTE:

Follow all warnings and installation instructions provided with each GoFit Rubber Resistance Training System Product

All items sold separately—build your own custom workout program.

GETTING STARTED

GoFit Power Tubes and Super Bands:

Connect the GoFit Power Tubes or Super Bands to the carabiner ends of the Resist-a-Bar. Follow all Warnings and usage instructions included with the Power Tubes and Super Bands, sold separately.

Choose the weight-resistance levels appropriate to your training program. With the many choices available, you can expand on your exercise program as your training level advances.

The GoFit Door Anchor:

Some exercises use the GoFit Door Anchor. Follow all Warnings and usage instructions included with the Door Anchor, sold separately. For quick reference, see Door Anchor placement instructions on page 3A of this manual.

Exercise Guidelines

Always start your training at a level that will allow you to complete the recommended reps and sets. For optimal results when exercising, only increase weight resistance as you're able to maintain proper form and control while doing so.

- Take breaks between sets
- Discontinue if you feel undue pain
- Be patient and persistent—building strength takes time
- Have a towel and water bottle ready
- Breathe—your muscles need oxygen
  - Inhale when the muscle lengthens
  - Exhale when the muscle shortens.
 Think “exhale on the exertion.”
- Stretch before your workout, and especially upon completion.

Do exercises in proper order so you are balancing your muscle function. Example: while exercising your upper arms, follow a “pulling” exercise, such as bicep curls with a “pushing” exercise, such as tricep presses.
