

Merit-Based Incentive Payment System (MIPS) Program

Streamlining value-based care programs to reduce costs, maximize reimbursement, and improve quality of care

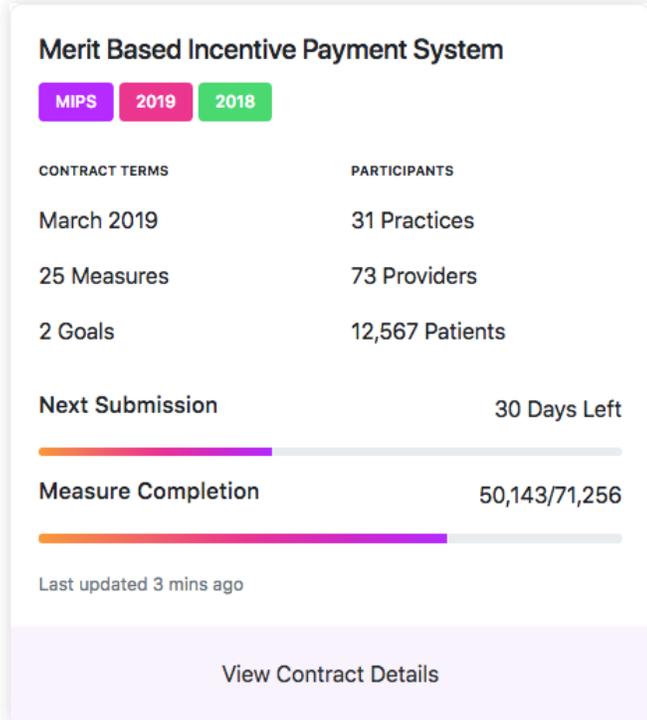

The Merit-Based Incentive Payment System (MIPS) is a new payment mechanism that will provide annual updates to clinicians starting in 2019 and is based on performance in four categories: Quality, Promoting Interoperability, Improvement Activities, and Cost. In addition, MIPS represents the streamlined consolidation of previously implemented value-based care programs like Medicare Electronic Health Records (EHR) Incentive Program for Eligible Clinicians, Physician Quality Reporting System (PQRS), and the Value-Based Payment Modifier (VBM).¹ Because of these value-based reimbursement payments, you want to make sure the quality care you already provide is measured accurately.

But with so many measures, various deadlines, and enough commercial contracts to last a lifetime, how do you do it all? How do you keep up with all the nitty-gritty details of your data while giving your patients the best possible care they need?

71 percent of doctors in the MIPS program will get money for "exceptional performance."²

Measures Manager™, by Healthcare Innovation Solutions, Inc., does it all for you. Our cloud-based solution allows you to view your own data in a way you never have before by partnering with you to analyze your data and contract details, then streamlining it into one simple, easy to read dashboard. We have all the information you need about the programs you participate in and weave it through your data to reveal each clinician's performance, how they measure up to the programs, and what actions need to be taken in order to meet deadlines and maximize your reimbursement.

We know data and the requirements for MIPS can be complicated to say the least. That's why we also provide MIPS advisory services to help you navigate through that mountain of information.
