SMEKENS CLASSROOM POSTERS

Constructed-Response Writing Poster Item #132 $2.99

Take the mystery out of constructed-response writing skills by following the simple step-by-step hopscotch numbers for the basics of building a successful written response.

Ride the Story Plot Poster Item #207 $2.99

Well-written narratives all have the same story shape—that of an airplane or roller coaster ride. After some initial information about main character(s) and setting, the story takes off when the problem/conflict is identified. As the story progresses, the problem gets worse, and the action escalates to its climax. From that high point, the final details fall quickly into place and the story ends smoothly.

ABC Poster Item #105 $2.99

This colorful poster includes each letter of the alphabet and space for a topic or concept in the center. It is an excellent tool for generating details before writing, targeting specific word choice, reviewing content-area material before a test, and more. Teachers love to laminate this 18" x 24" poster for easy write-on/wipe-off functionality.

Writing From Sources Poster Item #218 $5.99

Synthesizing ideas across sources requires two separate steps, and this poster accounts for both. STEP 1: Collect relevant textual details on sticky notes while keeping source-specific information organized. STEP 2: Read through all of the details and group similar ones to generate new and bigger thoughts; note these syntheses within the ba-bam bubbles to the right.

Inference Poster Item #233 $5.99

Color-coded to match the Reading Voice (green) and the Thinking Voice (yellow), this poster will help students understand how to take text clues (green), add background knowledge (yellow), and make an inference (pink) about their reading. Use sticky notes with the poster during your whole-class comprehension mini-lessons to demonstrate your thinking during a Think Aloud. Then switch out the sticky notes for a We-do example. Consider laminating it to increase its durability.

Yes, MA'AM Poster Item #184 $2.99

Provide students a visual reminder for constructed-response writing with a Yes, MA'AM poster. Each letter of the acronym stands for part of a response required on many standardized tests (M=Me, A=Author, A=Author, M=Me). Students simply follow the formula to build a successful written response.

Evidence Poster Item #203 $2.99

This poster spells out the citing-evidence procedure. Using the E.V.I.D.E.N.C.E. acronym, students will: Enter the text looking for the most Vital Information and Details. They will Extract them, Name them, Cite them, and then Explain them within their written responses.

READING RESOURCES

Revised & Redesigned

Launch the Reading Block, 2nd Edition

Item #245 $16.99

Kristi McCullough opens this resource with a big-picture vision for how whole-class mini-lessons, small-group instruction, and literacy stations ultimately work together to support students mastering literacy skills. Then it describes the importance of foundational lessons to establish routines, outline expectations, and build stamina at the beginning of the school year. The subsequent pages outline a day-by-day schedule of mini-lessons needed to achieve this during the first six weeks.

In addition, this resource debunks misconceptions in order to overcome common management pitfalls when teaching reading.

NEW!

Teaching & Prompting Guide

Item #190 $6.99
This 4-page guide provides insight into reader behaviors and reading strategies. Each strategy includes skills with prompts and questions for each developmental stage of reading (Pre-A/Emergent, Early/Beginning, Transitional, and Fluent).

Text Features: The Purposeful Parts of Text

Physical Set: Item #234 $12.99
Digital Set: Item #592 $9.99

Whether it's a headline or time line in print text or a hyperlink or button in digital text, Strong readers learn to navigate efficiently using physical text features authors and publishers provide. To support instruction of these purposeful reader tools, each text feature in the set includes a visual representation on the front side and detailed explanation of its purpose and function on the back.

Text-Evidence Peepers

Item #247 $4.99
When teaching about text evidence, utilize the Peepers to help students understand that evidence comes from literal details found in the text.

Perspectives Mask

Item #250 $2.99

Use this mask to emphasize that readers must infer the perspective of literary characters, poem speakers, or essayists. A character or Individual hints at his attitude or feeling, all the while "hiding behind a mask."

Evidence Bags

Item #193 $5.99

The Evidence Bag reinforces what counts as textual evidence. Before the activity, the teacher would write/type multiple sentences from a text onto individual strips of paper. After reading the entire text, the teacher makes a claim about the information (e.g., The main character is courageous). Like a reading detective, students work in small groups to read each sentence strip and determine if it's evidence to support the opinion or merely a detail from the original passage. Each strip that is identified as evidence is then collected within the Evidence Bag.

Watch as Kristina Smekens explains how to use this product in your classroom.

WhyLighter Pen

Item #244 $2.49

Teach students to replace highlighting with *why*lighting. Show them the importance of marking key words and phrases intentionally and then noting their thinking beside the text.

Comprehension Voice Signs

English: Item #130 Spanish: Item #217 $5.99 each

Watch as Kristina Smekens explains how to introduce the three different voices in a reader's head.

CLOSE-READING RESOURCES

Close-Reading Questions Foldouts

Broken into the three phases of close reading, the Close-Reading Questions foldouts allow teachers to select the most relevant questions for each text. Two different sets of questions are available (literature/fiction and informational text/nonfiction).

- Sold as a set: Item #SM187 $7.99

TOOLS FOR TEACHING

Writing-About-Reading Frames

Item #198 $4.99 each

After reading literature or informational text, it's common to have students generate a written response. These complex tasks are presented as an extended-response writing and follow a predictable structure. The Writing-About-Reading Frames include over two dozen typical prompts seen on standardized assessments. Organized by Narrative Writing, Literary Analysis, and Research Writing, teachers can plug in any title, author, concept, or plot information to generate a persuasive, argumentative, informative, or narrative response.

Serving Up Synthesis Set

Item #196 $6.99

The synthesizing process is like baking a cake. Readers have to add multiple ingredients (additional thoughts) to the powdered cake mix (the original text) in order to produce a cake (achieve a new understanding or realization). Teach this process explicitly.

- 1) Introduce the six "ingredients" to consider when reading any text—background knowledge, setting/context, emotional reaction, other viewpoints, genre considerations, lingering questions. Represent each type of thought with a labeled spoon.
- 2) Read a powerful excerpt/text.
- 3) Holding up one spoon at a time, ask questions from the color-coordinated recipe cards.
- 4) Using the seventh recipe card, show students how to add up their thoughts, thinking beyond the text's meaning and considering why it matters. The seventh recipe card includes "baking time" questions to help students achieve a culminating synthesis.

Engage the Class Teacher Clipboard

Item #209 $8.99

A student's level of engagement falls when he is stationary and silent. This is when learning stalls. However, the intentional and frequent use of physical movement, peer conversations, and classroom space all activate and stimulate student thinking. As a teacher, keep a list of such activities handy with this clipboard.

Talk Moves Mini-Poster Set

Item #210 $7.99

Melding thinking with others helps students' ideas gain strength and grow. Using hand signals during whole-class conversations, students communicate what they are thinking—even when they are not the ones speaking out loud. The eight Talk Moves within this mini-poster series include:

- I have an answer.
- I can repeat.
- I am confused.
- I agree.
- I can add on.
- I have proof.
- I disagree.
- I can clarify.

Revision Conferencing Cards

Item #106 $3.99/set

The Revision Conferencing Cards provide those questions, making it easy for the teacher or a peer to direct a writer to the portions of his work that need more attention. The set of 5 cards comes with instructions that outline how to best use this valuable tool.

Story Cube

Item #249 $4.99

What is the problem? Flag

Item #211 $9.99

Reinforce the most essential ingredient in narratives: Every story needs a problem. Use this flag as a mini-lesson trigger during any narrative-writing unit.

Watch as Kristina Smekens explains how to use the placemats in your classroom.

Think, Ink, Pair, Square Placemats

Item #139 $2.99 per mat

(Price Note: One unit is one placemat. Colors vary.) Engage learners to think, work with peers, and then share what they know using these graphic organizers to review recently taught concepts. 10.75" x 16.5" laminated card stock.

Front & back of card

Writer Conference Compliment Card

Item #219 $1.99

When conferring with writers, provide them each a trait-specific compliment; tell the writer what he did well. For example, Jeremy, your word choice in this piece is fantastic! I love the words "bloated, alarmed, and screeched." AWESOME verbs! Providing such a compliment is important because often this wasn't something the writer did intentionally; it was by accident. Name the skill so he will do it again, on purpose, in the future.
