

Add-A-Century Timeline

Card Stock with Issues!

Grid - The light grid lines printed on the pages are not quite centered on the page. Normally, you could have your pages turned either way and the grid would line up from page to page. With these pages there will be larger/smaller spaces on the top and bottom edges instead of equal spaces. You simply have to flip your pages to get the best alignment – the grid lines may line up perfectly, they may be barely off, or they may be off by almost 1/8". Plus, they may be crooked (slanting slightly)! However, the system still functions as intended.

Score Line – The double pages in the Add-A-Century system are 24" wide and scored in the center to achieve the final 12" x 12" size when folded. The score line on these pages is off-center, so when the Timeline is folded up accordion-style, it will be uneven. Some are only slightly off-center, some more significantly. The system still functions as intended, but it won't be as neat when folded.

Mylar - The mylar on the card stock pages is what makes the Add-A-Century system so flexible, allowing you to add/remove pages in the middle of the system as well as use the binder tabs. These pages will have some wrinkles in the mylar – some slight, some more significant. Function is largely unaffected.

38% Discount – Most of the packages will fall into this category, having two card stock issues: grid and score line.

40% Discount – Few packages are in this category, having ALL the card stock issues: grid, score line, and mylar.

33% Discount – A small number of packages have the grid issue only.
