Curriculum : Parenting the Love and Logic Way, 9 Essential Skills for the Love and Logic Classroom

Biography : Jen Walker moved to Juneau from Colorado by way of Anchorage. She studied English with an emphasis in education at Colorado State University and proceeded to teach middle school language arts where connecting with students was at the heart of her work. When Love and Logic came along, her teaching and parenting both reaped the benefits. In her free time Jen loves to spend time with her family and do just about anything outside. She also runs a Forest Kindergarten program and thrills at connecting kids with nature. Grateful that Love and Logic has given her the power to re-write her parenting paradigm (yelling, lecturing, spanking) with one free from any of those things, she is passionate about sharing these skills with parents who are ready to learn them.

Biography : I am a Minnesota-born but Alaska-loving mom to five fantastic kids. I arrived in the Mat Su Valley in 2001 for my first teaching job in a self-contained classroom for emotionally disturbed middle school kids. I am certified to teach Special Education K-12 and have worked as an Assistant Principal with my Master's in Educational Leadership, but my greatest role is that of "mom."

Mother Theresa said, "If you want to change the world, go home and love your family." I love facilitating Love and Logic because it equips parents, teachers, caregivers and communities to love their kids well. Strengthening families is the foundation for strengthening kids, and Love and Logic has wonderful, easy-to-implement information that will help all of us raise the odds for raising responsible kids who are a pleasure to be around. I would love to come to your school or organization to facilitate a Parenting the Love and Logic Way class. Contact me at the e mail or phone number listed above to discuss how we can work together to prepare our kids for the real world!
