Curriculum : Parenting the Love and Logic Way

I am an independent facilitator, initially of the Becoming a Love & Logic Parent Curriculum, and now of the Parenting the Love and Logic Way Curriculum. I have been using the skills I've learned since 2004 and facilitating classes using the curriculum since 2005. The mother of three children, ranging in age from early 30s to teens, I offer personal experience with how valuable these skills and tools are in raising the odds of raising children who become responsible adults. In the classes that I facilitate, I work to model how the Love and Logic Curriculum helps to create a consciousness and mindfulness in parenting that is relationship-building, heart-connected and compassionate, while providing solid techniques for holding ourselves and our children accountable to live our authentic values.

As a school administrator for 15 years at both public and private schools, I have never seen a program work as effectively with students as Love and Logic. Learning personally from Jim Fay, I tried the principles with one of my most challenging students, and I turned from skeptic to believer. As an administrator who has had to work with difficult students at times, I found the Love and Logic principles worked very well with challenging students. I began to share these principles and found they had a positive impact on my faculty and on our students. I have also presented these principles with parent groups and have been pleased with the positive impact Love and Logic has on families.
