FAQs
Q: What credential does ACMSS offer? A: ACMSS offers the "Certified Medical Scribe Specialist" (CMSS) credential. A person holding the CMSS credential is certified to have the required education and training required by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services to meet requirements for electronic health record incentive payments under federal law. Persons licensed as a CMSS™ credential are highly skilled personnel hired into the role of a hybrid clinical assistant for the physician, as defined by the 2015 EHR final rule.	Q: How are persons holding the CMSS™ credential more valuable than individuals who lack the credential? A: A medical provider who uses non-credentialed medical personnel will be unable to use those personnel in attesting compliance with the Medicare and Medicaid EHR (Electronic Health Records) Incentive Programs. CMSS™ credential holders are qualified to perform the whole breadth and depth of all clinical, medical, medicolegal, task delegations, and EHR-related workflows, as defined by the 2015 EHR final rule.	Q: May providers delegate work in the EHR, including order entry, to a person without the required credential? A: No - If the provider wants to receive incentive payments, the provider must attest to full compliance with the EHR requirements. The final rule regarding the Medicare and Medicaid EHR Incentive Payment Program requires that providers seeking to qualify for EHR incentive payments cannot to delegate entry of EHR only to credentialed persons, as defined by the 2015 EHR final rule.
Q: May a provider on its own issue credentialing for compliance with the Medicare and Medicaid EHR Incentive Payment Program? A: No – The MACRA final rule issued in October 2015 provides that a CMSS™ may enter orders if he or she is credentialed to perform the duties of a CMSS™ through ACMSS™. Employing providers cannot internally certify under the law, and the CMSS™ credential from ACMSS™ meets that third-party certification requirement.	Q: Explain if working as a scribe it is a legal requirement to keep credentials in place? A: CMSS™ Licenses must be carried at all time and paid relicensing fees must be kept current at all time. All licenses renew annually and must be secured with valid credit card at all times. Failure to pay will result in lapsed CMSS™ credentials in the future, at which time, if cancelled, will result in retake of the application for licensure again. Everything starts over.	Q: What is the standard procedure for cancellation? A: If electing to cancel, you need to send an email to donotreply@theacmss.org to begin the cancellation process. Cancellation does not preclude anything owed at present; however, will not recur annual subscription starting at next years licensing interval/term/fee schedule.
