

I'm a Girl. See what I can be!

Inspired by the International Emmy® nominated online video series WomenTalk, this collection of poems features stories of 10 strong and courageous Asian women.

"I learnt to never give up and anything can happen if you try. I also learnt the virtue of determination and care."

- Gabrielle Koh En, 11 years old

"These poems are easy to read and my favourite story is about the swimmer, Theresa! I want to be strong like her. Mummy helped me with some words and we had fun reading the stories together!"

- Aasha Fan, 7 years old

"Girls can do great things also."

- Isaac Seow, 8 years old

"I find the poem very touching. From your poem, I learnt that Lek showed the virtues of love, care, gentleness and joyfulness."

- Janelle Woo, 8 years old

"I learnt to never give up on anything."

- Kayla Lee, 10 years old

"Very touching and meaningful."

- Timothy Seow, 12 years old

"As doctors have helped me before, I want to help others too when I grow up."

- Omar Waleed Hamraoui, 10 years old

"I love the book as it shared stories of people who have overcome their difficulties despite the problems faced by them."

- Shamillah Banu D/O Alawden, 10 years old

"The main lesson is to never give up."

Adam Hamraoui, 11 years old

ANAMIKA SUBBA

The Changemaker

A country of beauty
where Everest stands tall, Nepal and her people
if I can recall.

A magical place where the people are strong.
In spirit and strength where you'll feel you belong.

She writes of her journey,
of people she meets.
Their struggles, regrets,
hopes, and defeats.

Her words come to life with the actors on stage.
The plays that she write will surely not age.

For theatre is where the magic takes place, where people are accepted
despite age, faith or race.

She believed that impossible was nothing at all.
She wasn't afraid
to fail and to fall.

She started a business and stayed right on track.
She made up her mind
and never looked back.

Today she has restaurants in so many towns.
And if we go there
it'll turn up our frowns.
