Overview

The Anti-social Behaviour Crime and Policing Act 2014 has placed significant emphasis on the importance of partnership working between social landlords, the police and local authorities. To get the best out of this new approach, housing providers need to understand the range of solutions available to all parties and how they should work in co-ordination with them.

These powers are more flexible, quicker to obtain and less bureaucratic. This will make it easier for all agencies to deal with anti-social behaviour and put victims at the heart of the process.

This course is for managers, team leaders and officers who will be working with partner organisations on crime and disorder and other anti-social behaviour panels.

This course contains the following modules:

Module 1 - Criminal behaviour orders - Criminal Behaviour Orders (CBO), standard of proof, harassment, alarm, and distress, putting victims first, CBO durations, special rules for those under 18 years of age, breaching the terms of a CBO and CBO summary.

Module 2 - Other partner powers - We will look at how each of the following work, Dispersal powers, Public Space Protection Orders (PSPO), Community Protection Notices (CPN) and Closure of Premises Orders.
