OVERVIEW

Once there was a boy is a beautiful story about friendship, trust and forgiveness.

A boy who lives alone on an island spends his days picking fruit, climbing mangrove trees and watching the sun light up the sea. His life is simple and uncomplicated. A young girl suddenly appears on the island. She is asked not to look under the boy’s bed, but when she eventually succumbs to temptation, she breaks his heart. The reconciliation at the end of the book helps readers to understand the importance of sharing and thinking about other people’s feelings.

THEMES

Friendship
- Friendship is an important theme in the text. So too is the idea that sometimes, friends make mistakes.
- The boy and girl have known loneliness and solitude. For them, this friendship brings a new sense of warmth.

Trust
- The girl hurts the boy’s feelings by betraying his trust. She earns back his trust through her actions.

Sharing
- The two new friends learn that sharing is an important part of friendship.

Forgiveness and Reconciliation
- Friends forgive one another.
- Reconciliation is not always easy but the end results are worth the effort.

AUDIENCE AND WRITING STYLE

Once there was a boy is written in third person, past tense. Its simplicity and innocence is seamlessly reflected in the sparse, perfectly nuanced language. This story can be enjoyed by a wide range of ages, including adults, as it is about the innocence of young friendship, temptation, broken hearts and forgiveness. Dub Leffler uses analogies such as the heart as friendship that gives this text sophistication and depth.

LINKS TO THE AUSTRALIAN CURRICULUM

These notes have been written in context with the Australian Curriculum. The appendix highlights a selection of relevant cross-curriculum priorities, general capabilities and content descriptors across a range of year levels that the following activities address.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR AND ILLUSTRATOR

Dub Leffler is one of thirteen children and grew up in the small town of Quirindi, south of Tamworth in New South Wales. He is descended from the Bigambul and Mandandanji people of south west Queensland.

Dub began his visual arts career as an animator and has worked as a muralist and art teacher. He has collaborated with internationally recognised illustrators such as Colin Thompson, Shaun Tan and Banksy. Dub has illustrated several children’s books including Magabala Books’ Deadly Reads for Deadly Readers series (2012).

In 2015, Dub was one of six Indigenous creators selected to showcase their work at the National Book Festival in Washington DC as part of First Nations Australia Writers’ Network’s (FNAWN) first delegation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander writers to the United States.
CLASSROOM IDEAS
• Before reading Once there was a boy, view the book trailer on YouTube. Make predictions about the text based on the trailer. After reading the book, reflect on the trailer. Discuss the choices made in the structure of the trailer. What important elements of the story have been included? Which have deliberately been left out? Why? http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qYO-ZaWCMiw
• Examine the contrast between the colours used in the endpapers and those used on the title page and last page of the book. What do these colours represent?
• What clues does the title page give about the story?
• The artwork used throughout Once there was a boy is beautiful. Take the time to carefully examine the illustrations, in particular the textless pages. What is being told on these pages? Why has the author chosen these junctures of the story to be told through illustrations alone? Compose appropriate sentences for these pages that would suit the style and mood of the narrative.
• What messages do you think the author is conveying through this book?
• Which is your favourite illustration in Once there was a boy. Why? Share this with a small group.
• Have you ever felt like the boy or the girl in Once there was a boy? Write a reflection explaining how you felt and why.
• Share with a friend a time when you have been tempted to do something you were told not to do. How did you feel when you were discovered? How can you relate to the way the girl feels?
• When the boy discovers his broken heart, why does he throw the pieces into the sea? What is he thinking about as he sits watching the ocean?
• What do you think the boy is looking for as he watches from the crow’s nest of the ancient boat?
• What observations can you make about the relationship between the boy and nature? Use examples from the text to help explain your answer.
• From a distance, the boy sees someone coming onto his island. Imagine you are the boy. Write about this moment. What are you thinking? Do you have any reservations? What are you hoping might eventuate from this encounter?
• Discuss the use of colour in Once there was a boy, for instance the use of soft, muted tones to represent the sunrise and the pink sand as the girl approaches.
• The boy decides to collect his favourite fruit to share with the girl. What does this tell us about the boy’s character?
• The girl eats all the sapotes that the boy drops. What does this tell us about the girl? How might the boy have felt at this time?
• Discuss the following statement in relation to Once there was a boy: ‘The girl is like Goldilocks’.
• The girl falls asleep in his softest hammock. Does the boy want the girl to stay or not? Discuss.
• If the girl was asked not to look under the boy’s bed, why did she disobey?
• Look carefully at the page opening in which the girl’s legs and feet are visible from under the boy’s bed. The text tells us that ‘the girl’s imagination started jumping up and down.’ Discuss the illustration in relation to the text. Can we see her imagination jumping up and down or do we as readers have to visualise that? Why is this illustration such a powerful one? Discuss.
• Before reading on, brainstorm what objects might be in the box.
• Put objects in a box and use as stimulus for on-demand writing tasks.
• How is the girl looking in the box similar to Eve eating the apple in the Garden of Eden?
• Why is the boy’s heart kept in a box? Why isn’t it with him? What is the author really saying about the boy’s situation? Discuss analogies and how Dub Leffler has used analogies in this book.
• Does the author want us to dislike the girl or feel sorry for her? Discuss how point of view is portrayed.
• Why did the girl vanish as soon as she broke the boy’s heart?
• Examine Dub Leffler’s use of body language in his illustrations to represent emotions and plot development.
• The textless page opening in which the girl sits silently in the mangroves is very powerful. Now she too is alone. What do you think is going through her mind as she sits so quietly by herself?
• If the girl had stayed rather than vanished, do you think the boy still would have thrown his heart into the ocean? Discuss.
• How has the girl broken the boy’s heart?
• When the boy throws his heart away, the waves are choppy and fierce. How does this reflect his mood and emotions at this part of the story?
• Discuss the powerful white page with the simple text, ‘she reached out and gently placed something into the boy’s lap’? What do you think she will place there? Why has Dub Leffler chosen to have a ‘pictureless’ page towards the end of the book?
• Why has the girl given the boy her heart? What is she really saying?
• What lessons can you learn from the boy? What qualities does he have that are admirable?
• Write your own story entitled Once there was a girl, telling the story from the girl’s point of view.
• The language used to tell this story is simple, yet powerful. Discuss the language features of Once there was a boy, including the sparse and particular choice of vocabulary.
• For older students, create your own book trailer for Once there was a boy.
• Compare Once there was a boy with John Heffernan’s The Island. How are these stories similar and different?
• Write a review or blog about Once there was a boy. How are these stories similar and different?
• Retell the events of Once there was a boy either in your own words, through a story map or an illustration.
• In small groups, dramatise Once there was a boy.
• Share your personal response to Once there was a boy. How did the story make you feel? Would you recommend it to others? Why?
• Use Once there was a boy to help teach language features, punctuation, sentence structure, grammar, and vocabulary as outlined in the Language strand of the Australian Curriculum: English. http://www.australiancurriculum.edu.au/English/Curriculum/F-10?layout=2.
Cross Curriculum Priorities
Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures, Sustainability

General Capabilities
Literacy, Intercultural Understanding, Personal and Social Capability, Critical and Creative Thinking

English - Year Level Description

The range of literary texts for Foundation to Year 10 comprises Australian literature, including the oral narrative traditions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, as well as the contemporary literature of these two cultural groups.

Students engage with a variety of texts for enjoyment. They listen to, read and view spoken, written and multimodal texts in which the primary purpose is to entertain, as well as some texts designed to inform. These include traditional oral texts, picture books, various types of stories, rhyming verse, poetry, non-fiction, film, multimodal texts and dramatic performances. They participate in shared reading, viewing and storytelling using a range of literary texts, and recognise the entertaining nature of literature.
