OVERVIEW

It is the late 1940s and Broome, a small pearling town in the heart of an ancient land, is still recovering from WWII. Ubby, a smart, street-wise Aboriginal girl, is the leader of a small rag-tag gang known as the ‘Underdogs.’ Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings (Book 2) is storytelling on a remarkable scale. It continues with established characters that have links to other worlds amidst an intricate backdrop of Aboriginal and Chinese mythology.

In this second graphic novel of the Ubby’s trilogy, efforts to locate Sai Fong, the Dragon Summoner, by Ubby and her gang have been halted by the ambitious Pearling Master, Paul Donappleton. Yupman, the guardian of Sai Fong, is pushed to breaking point as his past reaches out to strike and his greatest fear now sits upon the horizon. As the gang grapples with larger events, Donappleton’s greed and desperation push the sleepy town to the brink. Old myths and smoky legends from an ancient scroll begin to take on a new meaning, and it becomes a race to unravel the truth for all involved. This is a gallant and thrilling tale that tests the limits of courage and friendship at all levels.

- Author’s original artwork for Ubby’s was purchased by Dromkeen, Australia’s National Centre for Picture Book Art, and then gifted to the State Library of Victoria, where it went on display in 2014
- General appeal as well as diehard Manga fans – graphic fight sequences
- Unique – brilliantly executed second book of the Ubby’s trilogy, Australia’s first Indigenous graphic novel series

AUDIENCE AND WRITING STYLE

Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings is the second in Brenton E McKenna’s graphic novel trilogy. It interweaves Aboriginal and Chinese mythology to create an adventure for Ubby’s Underdogs who use wit, courage, determination and problem-solving skills to help find their friend, Sai Fong. It integrates humour with fast-paced action. The series will appeal to an upper-primary to lower-secondary audience, as well as reluctant readers.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR AND ILLUSTRATOR

Brenton ‘Ez’ McKenna is a Yawuru artist and graphic novelist from Broome, WA who fell in love with comic books at a young age. He draws his inspiration from growing up in Broome and the Aboriginal and Asian influences in his own life. Brenton studied visual arts for two years at Goulburn TAFE and in 2009 was one of twenty successful applicants to be awarded a highly sought after mentorship with the Australian Society of Authors. Brenton’s success and recognition as a graphic novelist has taken him across the world – in 2015 he participated in the Edinburgh International Book Festival and travelled to India with the First Nations Australian Writers Network for the Literary Commons! project.

CLASSROOM IDEAS

• Discuss the generic structure of graphic novels, including the layout, speech/thought bubbles and narration. Read the first few pages together as a class.

• Take time to read about the list of characters in Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings. Refer back to this page as required as you read the text.

• Recap on the first book in the series, Ubby’s Underdogs: The Legend of the Phoenix Dragon by reading ‘The story so far…’ at the start of the text. Make predictions as to what may happen in Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings.

• Discuss the aspects of visual literacy involved when reading graphic novels. How is meaning conveyed through the use of:
  - Angle (low, mid, high)
  - Framing
  - Gaze (close-up, mid-shot, long shot)
  - Colour
  - Facial expressions/non-verbal gestures

• Create a story map that traces the plot of Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings.

• Explain the relationship between Donappleton and his son, Scotland? Why is he a bully? What developments in this relationship can you predict?

• Analyse Yupman’s character. Although his enemies try to depict him as a traitor, the illustrations and his actions help the reader to trust him. Discuss.

• On p64, Ubby ‘gives up’. Later in the text however, she explains that she just needed a sleep. She has regrouped. Discuss the theme of resilience and perseverance in Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings. Why is Yupman concerned that Ubby might have given up?

• The ‘staircase to the moon’ is a feature of Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings. Find out more about this unique feature of Broome. Read the picture book Staircase to the Moon by Bronwyn Houston and view images on Google Images.

• The three sacred weapons can only be used by those worthy of their power. Discuss the personal qualities that would align the weapons with various characters. If you could create your own sacred weapons, what would they be? Which qualities would they demand in order to work?

• An ancient scroll tells of ghosts ‘without family and without love’. Scotland’s grandfather seems different as a ghost than as he was as a human. How is he different and what has he learnt?

• What clues is the reader given that the story is set in the 1940s?

• What makes a hero? The text says that heroes are often made in the face of adversity and that sometimes, they are ‘who we least suspect’ (p167). Do you agree with this? Why? Can you think of heroes from other stories who fit this suggestion (eg Bilbo Baggins)?

• Discuss the importance of Medinga to the plot of Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginning. What role does he play?

• Make predictions about the plot and themes of the third book in this trilogy.

• Create your own characters and plot for a graphic novel. Your library may have books to help you learn how to draw cartoon characters. You can also find websites to help with drawing cartoon figures. Experiment with online graphic novel software such as http://www.comicmaster.org.uk/

• Research the pearling industry in Broome, especially around the time that Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings was set.
• Discuss the role that women and girls – namely Ubby, her mother and Sylvania - play in Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings.

• Read the transcript of ABC radio interview with the author Brenton E McKenna, http://www.abc.net.au/local/audio/2013/11/01/3882392.htm. You could also watch the following YouTube clip http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-fvjJ0NSFCU. Write a reflection that shows your understanding of the author’s inspiration for creating Ubby’s Underdogs.

• Choose a section of Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings to write in prose. Include appropriate conventions such as direct speech and paragraphing.

• Read the notes at the end of Ubby’s Underdogs: Heroes Beginnings that explains ‘The Council of Magic’ and ‘The Black Rule’. How do these notes help to contextualise these story elements?
