

TOCCIN

marie claire

16 Quiet-Luxury-Inspired Pieces to Update Your Winter Wardrobe (And to Wear Forever)

Even better that they're all up to 60 percent off.

By Brooke Knappenberger

Last Updated 3 Days Ago

Any fashion lover will tell you that the days of splashy logos and in-your-face designs are long gone in terms of luxury dressing. Nowadays, the fashion crowd is opting for the subtle, a.k.a. quiet luxury. Think quality over quantity, understated over loud, and classic over trendy. In short, the quiet luxury vibe is all about investing in lifelong pieces you can wear year after year. More specifically, white button-downs to layer with, easy-going ballet flats for every season, and maxi coats to bundle up in are just some of the styles that make up the set. Now, although quiet luxury entails more of an investment on the offset, it doesn't mean you have to shell out entire paychecks if you want to update your wardrobe. Thankfully, Saks Fifth Avenue has come through with a sale to give your winter wardrobe a luxurious refresh.

Right now, Saks is throwing a massive designer sale of up to 60 percent off. In case that hasn't fully sunk in yet, we're talking ultra-luxurious pieces from top brands like Tory Burch, Veronica Beard, Anine Bing, Theory and more just in time for the new winter season. Ahead, I've rounded up 16 pieces that are the best of the best of the sale. From cashmere sweaters to classic denim, these are the kinds of quiet luxury pieces you can wear not just this winter, but for seasons to come. But act fast—the sale ends on December 25.

Toccin Valeria Ribbed Turtleneck Sweater (Was $265)

---

$139 at Saks Fifth Avenue

A thin black turtleneck was a signature of It girl Carolyn Bessette-Kennedy, who basically invented quiet luxury in the 90s before it became a trend. So if you want to nail the rich minimalist look, this is the piece you definitely need to pick up.