AN EVERYDAY WINE BAR

A BIT ABOUT OUR LIST

When we decided to open our own wine bar, we thought a lot about what we like to drink and what you like to drink too. Of course, we're in the driver's seat here, but rest assured we have built a list based on both of those things. We never intended on making a boring, formulaic wine list separated by colour, region or variety, but rather on style, producer, or taste, or whatever we thought made it worth talking about. Take a few minutes and read on, and of course, if you need any guidance please be sure to ask.

REAL CIDER FROM ERIC BORDELET

Here are vintage-specific ciders made with the same level of intention, quality and care as some of the best Champagnes. You will find these at the most famous restaurants in the world and they happen to drink with the purity and finesse of Champagne too. Poiré Granit, for example, is from 300-year-old pear trees grown on granite soils.

SPARKLING WINES

Pétillant Naturel, or Pet Nat for short, are sparkling wines that have undergone just one ferment (and in the bottle, too). They are not like Champagne and not trying to be - having done just one ferment they are all about primary fruit flavours and freshness. Some are cloudy, some are not, but all are delicious.

FLOR

Flor is the name given to a unique and rare yeast layer found on the top of certain wines when left in a very specific set of conditions in the winery. Sometimes referred to as a 'veil', once formed, a flor protects a wine from further oxidising, contributes massively to flavour and aroma (often taking it on a very different path), and makes for some of the most interesting styles of wine we've ever found. So good you might even name a wine bar after it.

SKIN-FERMENTED WHITE WINES AKA ORANGE WINES

Ah, orange wine; the most misunderstood and maligned genre in the wine industry, and we think, unfairly so. Sure, there are some not-so-great ones, but this holds true for all things, so don't worry, we've done the drinking for you! All hits and no misses around here. LIGHT, JUICY REDS WHICH ARE BEST SERVED CHILLED

What follows rosé on a winelist can be no other than chilled reds. These are light, supple red wines with little-to-no tannin and all the thirst-slaking qualities of a rosé, but the structure and flavour composition of a red wine. We serve these chilled, at 14°C, so similar to an aromatic white wine, where you get the taut palate but don't sacrifice on aroma.
