Potter's Obsession

"Our exclusive Silvered hurricane, in shimmering mercury glass, is generous in size and priced under $100, which is unheard of. Whether on its own or filled with a pillar candle, it transforms a room to spectacular effect." $95

Margarite's Obsession "The Half Moon dinner plate from our Minimalist collection makes a bold statement and pops against any background. Microwave- and dishwasher-safe, and made in the U.S., this ceramic stoneware is equally strong in both performance and appearance." Set of four for $180.00

EVERY DAY, a Soiree

Swank home-accessory brand Fete Home turns day-to-day living into an ongoing lavish affair. —Robin Hodes

Audrey Margarite and Jennifer Potter launched Fete Home (fethehome.com) after honing their talents as top-level execs heading up the product division at Bunny Williams Home, and each brings something unique to the table. Potter loves glam and playing with color, while Margarite, a trained architect, favors the linear and graphic. Targeting chic women who want distinctive pieces but aren't sure where to find them, the duo has designed and produced a curated collection that's akin to fashion, attuned to a modern aesthetic and is also wholly effortless. "We consider it the final layer of a home," says Margarite of their label. Potter adds, "We offer great style that's livable and doesn't break the bank."
