DIFFERENT KINDS OF BABY FORMULA

1. COW

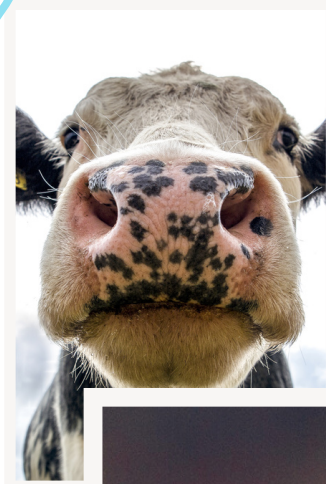

Cow's milk formula is one of the most popular choices. It offers a blend of whey and casein milk proteins with a ratio that is adjusted by age.

2. GOAT

Goat's milk is easier to digest because it's A2 and forms smaller milk curds in tummies. It's unsuitable for cow's milk protein allergy and lactose intolerance.

3. SPECIAL

Special milk is adapted for babies with or at risk of conditions like allergy, colic, & reflux. It should be used under pediatrician supervision.

FORMULA STAGES

Designed to reflect the natural changes of breast milk.

Stage PRE & 1 - Infant

Both offer complete nutrition for babies from 0 to 6 months, providing all the necessary nutrients for healthy growth and development.

Stage 2 & 3 - Follow-On

Follow-on formula is suitable for 6+ or 10+ months and must be fed as part of a mixed diet. It typically has more iron, calcium, & vitamin D.

Stage 4 - Toddler Milk

Toddler milk can be implemented as supplementary nutrition at 12+ months but doesn't replace solid food meals.

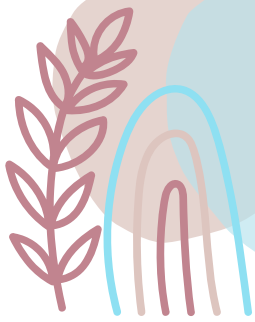

All Stages

Some formulas do not come in stages, meaning that one product is appropriate for all stages.

EUROPEAN ORGANIC CERTIFICATIONS

European Organic

Products with this logo contain at least 95% organic ingredients. GMOs and hormones are prohibited. Pesticides and herbicides are strictly limited.

Demeter Organic

Is the strictest standard for organic agriculture worldwide. They follow biodynamic farming practices that are more environmentally friendly.

Bioland Organic

Is the largest organic-food association in Germany. Its organic certification standards exceed EU organic minimum requirements.

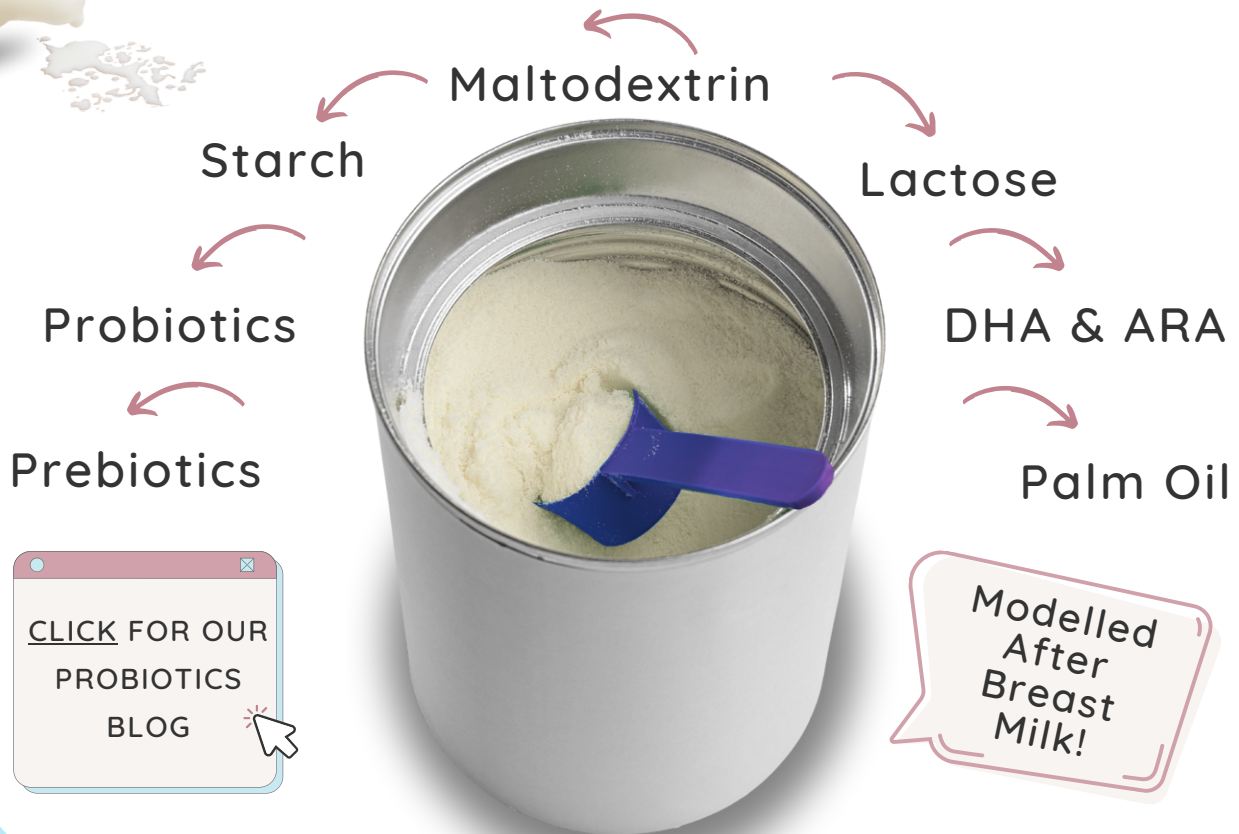

HiPP Organic Seal

HiPP has its own organic seal, which exceeds EU regulations. The company doesn't allow residues in their products & tests for 1000+ harmful substances.

FORMULA INGREDIENTS

Prebiotics & Probiotics

Probiotics are good bacteria & prebiotics are dietary fibers probiotics use for energy. They help support infant immunity and digestion.

Starch & Maltodextrin

These are both complex carbohydrates often added to later stages of formula to help your baby feel full.

Lactose

Lactose or milk sugar is the most common carbohydrate source in breast milk. It helps provide your baby with energy for growth.

DHA & ARA

DHA or Omega-3 and ARA or Omega-6 are essential fatty acids that support brain and eye development.

Palm Oil

Is added to reflect the fatty acids in breast milk. It acts as a source of palmitic acid. There are sustainable RSPO options.

Ingredients vary by product. See next page for more information.
