Love's Quest

Love's Quest

Celebrate &
Insulate your marriage!

Anna Marie Whitlock Henry

*I advised, upon request, a friend who contemplated marriage.
He asked what made one sure two are exactly right for each other.*

*I answered:
Seek no guarantees, for there are none.
But know that you are truly friends before you're lovers.*

*Be sure that life is better for the daily sharing;
that you find joy in doing things -
both work and play - together.*

*Seek always to maintain that mysterious fascination which first drew your souls
into this exciting,
yet complex endeavor.*

*Take pleasure in the volumes conveyed by a touch, a look;
conversations spoken in front of many;
understood by only two.*

*Precious time when eyes meet but for a fleeting moment;
love so strong
it is physically felt across a room.*

*In all of this,
be sure you stay
as special friends,
as kindred spirits.
Share all
that can
be shared,
yet ever respect
a private door.*

*Whatever part of self
you receive from one another, always cherish.
Then strive to balance
that affection
to neither suffocate, nor ignore.*

*When life seems intent on rushing you each
down different paths,
hold close the power
of love's complete
and mighty obsession.*

*Time then
to re-live
each moment
spent together;
each word spoken.
Such thoughts
can truly grant
a feeling of continual connection.*

*Please, take special care to not just hold, but daily nurture the depth of love
you've grown to share.*

*Never set aside
your precious, priceless feelings.
Then, surely then, unending love will be your answered prayer.*

The beauty of the relationship
God has given you will last forever when you

*Think First Speak Kindly
Forgive Easily
Love Always.*

Dedicated to:

Zane Taylor - the young man who sat in my office & truly did ask for advice!

My parents - Addie Belle & Billy James Whitlock
I will be forever grateful that they always encouraged me to explore my creative nature.

And finally, the person responsible for the photographs you have enjoyed . . .

Robert Henry. He is my wonderful husband
& the love of MY life.

We pray God's richest blessings on the life you now share.
