Your Family NEEDS
the Church

Our nation and society stands or falls on the spiritual strength of our homes. However, no structure or system is sounder than that upon which it is built.

There is no foundation that will support a home like a relationship with Christ and His church.

Every family needs the wholesome influence of a spiritual, Bible-believing assembly. Less than one-half of one percent of the young people who attend church regularly ever have a court record. At church, you meet the best people of your community. Your family needs this association.

A family also needs to be established in confident faith. Humans must rest their faith in something. The object of that faith must be worthy, capable, good, and helpful in every sense of the word. Who qualifies but Jesus Christ? Through worship and Bible instruction in the church and Sunday school, your family will be led to a personal faith in God.

Parental responsibility demands that we impart to our children a quality of character that will guide them into honest and productive lives. Getting them to their knees may be infinitely more important than getting them to college. If they are lost, their lives are ruined, or they bring shame to your home, who will be to blame? Will they have been cast into the proper mold?

Your family needs the church!
