Warlayirti Artists is in the remote community of Wirrimanu, also known as Balgo Hills, in WA's Great Sandy Desert. The art centre holds a special place in the history of Aboriginal art and last year celebrated its 35th anniversary. It is both a space where some of the greatest names of Aboriginal art have and continue to paint, and a cultural hub where the whole community gathers to share its stories and pass on knowledge.

'Wakarninpa Laltu, Tjukurrpa Laltu' features stunning works representing tjurkarrpa (dreaming) stories of a beautiful and ancient Country painted by artists who themselves span generations. From internationally acclaimed desert-raised legend Helicopter to senior artists Dulcie Nanala and Miriam Baadjo and Helicopter's granddaughter, emerging artist Stephanie Yukenbarri.

Balgo's bold, bright, signature style majestically unites places and people in a joyous celebration of Country, culture and art. In the words of the South Australian Museum's Prof. John Carty: "Balgo artists don't say this is a picture of their Country, they say that the painting is their Country".

We hope you enjoy this beautiful exhibition that it has been Aboriginal Contemporary's privilege to curate and bring to Sydney.
