The Finest Interior Design in the Area

With over 20 years experience as an interior designer, Elizabeth Stanhope is the creative lead for a team dedicated to providing the area's finest homes with outstanding interiors; classic, understated and elegant spaces to fall in love with...

After 20 years in the world of interiors, Elizabeth Stanhope is the creative lead for a tremendously talented team dedicated to creating the finest interiors in the area.

Immersed in a world of good taste, practical design and innovative products, her passion for classic design shines through from Oakham to Tuscany, Belgravia to New York and in all of the residential and commercial projects she has completed in-between.

And the designer sincerely believes in creating not just homes that reflect the unique tastes of her client, but spaces which function well too.

"Using a good interior designer to recreate a room in your home, or to help you to refurbish an entire property should help you to avoid costly mistakes - like creating a room you're not completely happy with, or one that looks good but doesn't function well for your family."

"People very often lack confidence in how their space should look, how it should feel, and importantly the best approach to layout and lighting. Our job is to inspire, to read between the lines, and ultimately to listen."

"One of the most important qualities of an interior decorator, other than an eye for design, is an ear to listen - to really understand what a client is searching for."

Born in Tur Langton, Elizabeth purchased the business from her mother in 2002, after returning from an interior design career in London and subsequently from her freelance work in and around the capital.
