Over the past 19 years, Mercado Global has worked hand-in-hand with Indigenous women that have long borne the brunt of Guatemala’s inequality. Despite living in a country with the largest GDP in Central America, our partner artisans’ communities struggle with food security and nutrition - while a lack of access to healthcare and education is the norm.

The World Food Programme reports that half of Guatemalan citizens cannot afford a basic food basket while over 65% live on less than $2 a day, numbers that are exacerbated in Indigenous communities.

Our work - with your help - allows these women to change the status quo. Mercado Global Partner artisans are not just business owners who work with some of the top brands and retailers in the world, they are also community leaders intent on creating a better future. With the income they earn they ensure their families have enough nutritious food to eat and that their children - especially their daughters - are in school.

In this progress report you will learn more about the work (and world) YOU have helped make possible.

From all of us at Mercado Global, thank you.

Sincerely,

Ruth Álvarez-DeGolia
Co-founder and Executive Director

Changing Community Health Outcomes with the Cleveland Clinic

One of the problems faced by Mercado Global partner artisans is a lack of access to health information. We are working to change that through our collaboration with the Cleveland Clinic.

This January six doctors from the hospital came to Panajachel to do community visits and create new learning modules for our health and wellness program. This work focuses on topics that match artisans’ needs - including childhood nutrition - and also works to break down taboos that traditionally prevent improved health outcomes around certain topics.

Our trainers will now bring these modules to the communities where we work - increasing knowledge around important health topics and improving outcomes.
EXPANDING OUR REACH

In March of 2023, Mercado Global teamed up with Honduras-based nonprofit CEPUDO for our first expansion pilot project.

Over the next three years, Mercado Global and CEPUDO will work hand-in-hand with Indigenous women from the Lenca community to produce pieces that will be included in our future collections. The project will also focus on building CEPUDO’s capacity as an organization that can create market access for artisans.

The work of Lenca will first be featured in our upcoming Spring/Summer 2024 collection.
