The stretch bracelets in this set measure 8" but can rest comfortably on your wrist up to 9".

You will also need a toothpick or scrap piece of wire to use as an applicator to apply your glue.

1. Start this project by cutting 3 lengths of 18" stretch fiber with your scissors.
2. Onto your first length of stretch fiber string on 1 gold bead, 1 turquoise bead, 1 gold bead and 1 medium brown wood bead. Repeat this pattern of beads 11 more times for a bracelet that is 8" long. Tie an overhand knot* with the two ends and add a small dab of glue. Tie another knot on top of the one you just made, let the glue dry, and snip off the excess stretch fiber with your scissors.
3. Onto your second length of stretch fiber string on 1 gold bead, 5 light brown wood beads, 1 gold bead and 1 turquoise bead. Repeat this pattern 6 more times for a bracelet that is 8" long. Tie an overhand knot with the two ends and add a small dab of glue. Tie another knot on top of the one you just made, let the glue dry, and snip off the excess stretch fiber with your scissors.
4. Onto your third length of stretch fiber, string on 17 dark brown wood oval beads. Tie an overhand knot with the two ends and add a small dab of glue. Tie another knot on top of the one you just made, let the glue dry, and snip off the excess stretch fiber with your scissors.
5. Lastly, with your chain nose pliers, open* up a gold plated jump ring and attach it to the stretch fiber on your dark brown wood oval bead bracelet. Close the jump ring. Open up another gold plated jump ring with your pliers and slide it onto that first jump ring. Before closing, also slide on the top loop from your feather charm and close.
6. Stack these bracelets on your wrist and enjoy!
