NEED A BEERCATION? BIKE, HIKE + RAFT THE OREGON HIGH DESERT

BEER WEST HAS A CRUSH ON BIKES. But can you blame us? These two-wheeled inventions save gas, tone your legs, and are way easier to park than a car. Plus, you don't have to plug the meters for bike parking (at least, not yet). What's more, Portlander Geoffrey Franklin is creating a variety of leather accessories with which to pimp your coveted ride. Our two favorites, of course, make transporting six-packs and growlers by bike as easy as pie. The cinch strap goes around your top tube and securely holds a six-pack of 12-ounce bottles, and the leather straps can be used to secure a growler on your bike rack. If motorists weren't jealous of your biking prowess before, they most certainly will be now—ride on.

 Bike Strap-down ($14) and the 6-Pack Frame Cinch ($22) are available through Walnut Studio on Etsy.com. Scan the image to purchase.
