Past and present Mosman Musical Society posters, the earliest being for 1932

There are few local cultural organisations with the longevity of your very own Mosman Musical Society. Formed in 1903, and still performing today, this enduring musical theatre group has survived two world wars and more than a century's social and cultural changes that have altered the face of the immediate world around it beyond recognition. Yet it endures. Why?

This entertaining and informative talk will reveal much of the Society's past and position it for an exciting future.

Jody Rose has been President of the Mosman Musical Society since 2001. He has many directing and performing credits with the group.
