Part 1

Foundation

Chain 126 (138,150,162,174,186) stitches + 1, the plus one counts as your turning chain (double check that it fits around your hips before you commit to a size) if you do choose to adjust your foundation chain just make sure that it is a multiple of 6 (+1).

Row 1:

Work 1 row of SC across the entire foundation chain, so you should have 126 (138,150,162,174,186) SC stitches.

Chain 3 and turn (Counts as 1st DC)

First Griddle Stitch Section

Work 1 SC into the second stitch (since your chain 3 counts as your first DC)

Work 1 DC into the next stitch

Work 1 SC into the next stitch

Repeat steps 2-3 until you reach the end of the row (your last stitch should be a SC)

Chain 3 and turn (Counts as 1st DC)

Repeat steps 1-5 until your 1st Griddle Stitch section is the amount of inches that you figured out earlier to reach the desired length. (You don't need to chain 3 at the end of the last row, but finish by chaining 1)

Repeat steps 1-5 until your 1st Griddle Stitch section is the amount of inches that you figured out earlier. (You don't need to chain 3 at the end of the last row, but finish by chaining 1)

Once you have finished all of these steps, you will be working on another fixed transition section before you start working on the mesh portion.

This is what it should start to look like once you are done with this half of the Skirt. Next week we will be working on the second half with the mesh, the drawstring waistband, and the slit that will be attached the halves for it to finally come together as a whole skirt!

Part 2

First Mesh Section (Fixed 3" Section)

You will now start working on the first mesh section of the skirt, which will also be a fixed section (the length of second mesh section of the skirt will be customizable based on how long you'd like your skirt to be).

Row 1:

Chain 3 (counts as the "first stitch")

Skip the second stitch and SS into the third stitch.

Chain 3

Skip the next stitch

SS into the next stitch

Repeat steps 3-5 all the way to the end of the row.

Repeat steps 2-3 till the end of the row

Chain 3 and turn

Repeat steps 1-5 of Row 2, for 8 rows, so you will end with a total of 10 rows of mesh. (You don't have to end with a chain 3 on the last row, but you can finish with a chain 1)

Second Mesh Section

You will now start working on the second mesh section of the skirt, which will be customizable based on how long you'd like your skirt to be. At this point you will measure from what you have finished so far to the desired length. There will also be one more fixed section which will be 6", so take that measurement and subtract the 6", whatever you have left over is how many inches of mesh you will need for this second section. In order for the skirt to be the desired length.

Row 1:

Skip the first stitch and SS into the second stitch.

Chain 3

Skip the next stitch

SS into the next stitch

Repeat steps 2-4 all the way to the end of the row.

Chain 3 and turn

Row 2:

SS into the first Chain 3 space

Chain 3

Skip next Chain 3 space

SS into the next Chain 3 space

Repeat steps 8-10 till the end of the row

Chain 3 and turn

Repeat steps 1-6 of Row 2, for as many rows necessary as you figured out earlier (You don't have to end with a chain 3 on the last row, but you can finish with a chain 1)

Work 1 row of SC

You are almost done with the skirt portion and the top works up pretty fast! You just need to finish the Draw String Section and the Connecting Slit Section!

Connecting Slit Section

On each side of the skirt you're going to work 1 row of SC as evenly across as possible. As noted before, this part will be easy if you kept track of how many rows you worked, also keep in mind that the edge of DC stitches gets 2 SC into it. Make sure that each side of the skirt has the same amount of SC stitches and that they are all placed in the stitches on each side, they will need to line up identically when you attach them.

Row 1:

Work that 1st row of SC stitches evenly across the side of the skirt

Chain 1 and turn

Row 2:

Work 1 more row of SC stitches all the way across the side of the skirt

Chain 4 and turn (counts as first DC)

Row 3:

Skip the first stitch

DC into the next stitch

Chain 1

Skip the next stitch

DC into the next stitch

Repeat steps 3-5, not until the end of the row, but until you reach the coverage section that you first worked up. (You can see an example in the picture below)

Finish the rest of the row by working DC into the rest of the stitches (don't skip stitches anymore)

Chain 1 and turn

Row 4:

Work 1 row of SC along the top.

Tie off

Repeat rows 1-4 on the other side of the skirt, you don't need to attach them now, but you will after you finish the drawstring section.

Drawstring Section

Going back to the very top of the project you will start working the Drawstring Section.

Work 4 rows of SC along the top of the skirt

Chain 3 and turn (Counts as 1st DC)

Work 1 row of DC

Chain 3 and turn (Counts as 1st DC)

For this row of DC you are going to be adding the "loops" for your drawstring to go through, you are going to do this by working a few FPDC stitches along the row. You can add as many or as few FPDC stitches as you like, but try to space them as evenly as possible (I think for mine I worked one every 10 stitches) it is really up to personal preference.

Chain 1 and turn

Work 2 rows of SC along the top

As you should be ending on the edge of the skirt, you can now start attaching the sides to each other to complete the skirt. You can attach the sides however you like ie. sewing them together or working slip stitches, just make sure they line up evenly. In addition, no matter how you attach it, there will probably be a bit of a seam, to avoid having this seam on the outside make sure that the drawstring loops that you just created are on the "inside" when you are attaching your sides together, then when you turn it inside out after you are done attaching them, the seam will be on the inside and the drawstring loops will be on the outside.

Part 3

To start the top off you are going to need to do a couple of measurements. The top is worked from side to side and attached by a lace up section in the back, therefore the length of the foundation chain will be determined by how long you want the top to be. Measure from the top of the bust down to the length you wish the top to be (if you know you would usually be wearing a bra with the top, take the measurement with the bra on as it may add a little bit of length).

That length measurement that you get is what you will work the approximate length of the foundation chain to be as you did with the skirt, make sure that the amount of chains that you work is a multiple of $6 + 1$. So chain a multiple of $6 + 1$ that is as close as possible to the length measurement that you'd prefer.

I know that the measurement of the standard sizes for the top seem small, but that is because it is a few less inches than the standard size so that the tie-up lace has some room to create tension. However, still keep in mind that these are just standard sizes if you don't think a standard size will fit you, add as many rows to the large griddle stitch sections (evenly on each side) that you need to make it fit you.

This is where you are creating the holes for you lace to be strung through. So you will be working a row of SC, but skip stitches as often as you'd like and chain 1 above each stitch that you skip in order to create the hole. The amount of lace holes that you wish to have is up to personal preference base done how you wish your lace to look, but just make sure that you separate them evenly across the row.

Whatever size you made, now all you have to do is add the straps and create your string to lace through the lace up tie section and you will be done! You can attach your straps (or even do strapless) wherever is most comfortable for you. I placed mine at that 4 rows of SC in between the griddle stitch sections and made them 4 rows thick, but again you can fashion them however you like! Just make sure that they are spaced evenly.

As for the lace up section, I did the same thing as I did for the drawstring for the skirt where I made a long chain, laced it through and attached little charms to the end for style!

Sizes 1x - 2x can be found here.
