

Bundy & Webster Commissioned Work

Who Are We?

We run an online shop specialising in beautifully made casualwear.

We also take on bespoke commissions, producing artwork & creative clothing for a wide range of businesses.

We are not your average corporate clothing manufacturers; instead we look to create imaginative, artistic & exciting merchandise for your customers.

Recent commissions include t-shirt designs for the Science Museum's gift shop, merchandise for the Garden Museum's 'Fashion & Gardens' exhibition & a sweatshirt to promote The Pansy Project's anti-homophobia message.

The Science Museum

We designed t-shirts for the 'Cosmonauts' exhibition's gift shop. We drew on classic campaign imagery for two of the designs, capturing the excitement that was felt at the time of the first space walk. We also came up with some totally unique designs that reflected what the exhibition was all about. For our Newspaper t-shirt, we recreated the front page reporting the first spacewalk & our fun Sputnik/ Moon t-shirt is aimed at adults & children alike.

The exhibition opening date is TBC.

The Garden Museum

Taking inspiration from flower crazes throughout the centuries, we created this bespoke design for 'Fashion & Gardens' exhibition. From Tudor roses, 17th Century tulips & Victorian camellias to today's sunflowers, this design reflects an enduring passion for the new & the beautiful. The t-shirt used a mix of different screen-printing techniques, with a two colour fade-out underlay & a simple black print to highlight the intricacy of the design. It sold out in their gift shop & even Ellie Goulding was even spotted wearing it!

The Pansy Project

This design was a product of our first collaboration with The Pansy Project. We wanted to create a beautifully simple & wearable protest intended to promote their anti-homophobia message. The sweatshirt used a mixture of different screen-printing techniques, with felt flocking & different coloured inks creating a textured, 3D design. Featured in the Sunday Times Style, The Guardian, OUT magazine & Emerald Street, the sweatshirt made huge waves in the fashion press.

Here we worked with the artist & founder to create a design that captured his journey since he planted his first pansy in 2005. Every t-shirt has on it an image of the 111 pansies that have been planted as part of The Pansy Project. Each marks a location of homophobic abuse & marks a tiny symbol of resistance against the idiocy of homophobia. It was created using a sublimation print technique to capture the detail, colour & vibrancy of each pansy

References available upon request
info@bundyandwebster.co.uk

Copyright Bundy & Webster Ltd.
All Rights Reserved