THE MAKER

Christine Byrne is the founder, designer, printer, and ruler of all things at Spacepig Press. With a BFA in Graphic Design from SCAD and 10+ years of experience in branding & design, she spent many years dabbling in letterpress. A cross country Brooklyn to Sacramento move freed up both the physical and the creative space to acquire another, bigger printing press and finally start Spacepig Press in late 2018. Despite being personally terrible about sending cards to anyone, ever, she decided to start a greeting card line.

THE NAME

These are the Spacepigs: the guinea pigs Jane (left, RIP you salty queen), Henrietta (right), & Goldie (center, this was her 1st Birthday). Henrietta and Jane were adopted in 2017, not knowing Henrietta was pregnant, and Goldie showed up as a bonus pig a few months later. They like to pose dramatically like they just landed on the moon or some undiscovered planet. While brainstorming business names, Christine sketched a little portrait of Jane in dramatic mode, threw a space helmet on her, and thus Spacepig Press was born.

THE PRESSES

Every item is individually printed on Petunia: a hand-fed, treadle-run Chandler & Price platen press manufactured in 1923. Acquired in a shady Craigslist deal, she was dirty, dusty, full of broken parts and debris, and the most beautiful thing we've ever laid eyes on. It took several months of cleaning, oiling, tinkering, swearing, acquiring parts, oiling more, sacrificing bourbon to the print gods, a little brute force, and oiling even more to get her in working order. She's a delicate 1500lb flower.

A few smaller table-top platens round out the family and help with small jobs and short runs. Thing 1, a 5x8 Kelsey (the very first press I bought), and Thing 2, a 6x10 Kelsey, made the cross country drive and are much happier on their dedicated work bench than they were stuffed under a table in Brooklyn.

I'd help you hide the body.

Joy is an act of Resistance

Welcome to adulthood.

None of us know what we're doing either.
