RETRO ROSE GOLD CUFF

Bulgari created this exquisite Retro rose gold, platinum and ruby strap bracelet in the 1940s. The design is an articulated strap composed of rose gold brick links. The buckle is decorated with round brilliant-cut diamonds, accented by circle-cut rubies, to a clasp of similarly cut diamonds. Perfectly representative of its time, this bold statement piece can be worn today for a dramatic effect. Signed Bulgari. The gross weight is 152 grams and the length is approximately 9 inches. 18k yellow gold. This piece can be resized.

“In every jewelry period, the materials and forms employed are reflections of the culture and society in existence at that point in history. The Retro Period (1930s–1950) is characterized by strong three dimensional forms made mostly from yellow and rose gold because WW II had led to a dearth of platinum.

There was a return to traditional feminine motifs such as ribbons, bows, straps and figurative designs including ballerinas and animals.”

FANCY COLORED DIAMOND EARRINGS

Mounted in 18k yellow gold, these earrings highlight diamonds that tell a wonderful color story. The petals of the flowers are made up of some of the hardest to find naturally colored diamonds: fancy pink, fancy light grey-blue, fancy intense yellow (including one internally flawless stone), fancy intense yellowish orange, fancy brownish orangy pink, fancy intense orange-yellow, light pink-brown, fancy greenish yellow, fancy grey.

Each of the 12 petal stones comes with its own GIA report. Measuring 0.60 inches in diameter. Total diamond weight is 5.1 carats.

“For colored diamonds, the aspect of color is much more important to value than clarity, cut or carat weight. There are three attributes that describe color: hue (the appearance of red, blue, green or anything in between); tone (the relative lightness or darkness of a color) and saturation (the relative strength or weakness of a color). Together, hue, tone and saturation determine the color appearance of the colored diamond or other colored stone.”
