Beauty & grooming gifts

Our pick of this year's biggest trends and must-have items to go under the tree on Christmas Day. Choose from DIY eyebrow lamination and lip kits to at-home shellac nails and hair styling tools. Words: Mattie Lacey-Davidson

1 Clay earrings
Handmade in London from a female-run business, Clear as Clay was born out of lockdown. You can support and follow the new brand on Instagram at @clearasclay. Each set is hypoallergenic and super-lightweight. From £12, shopclearasclay.com.

2 Makeup sets
The PETA-certified and paraben-free beauty brand delilah has just launched two holiday gift sets in time for Christmas and they're both vegan, of course. Choose from Stay the Night Shadow Stick Collection (£38), a beautiful collection of smooth, long-wearing cream eyeshadow sticks in three shades, or Nude Lip Wardrobe (£36), a three-piece lip set with liner, lipstick and gloss. delilahcosmetics.com

3 Lip kits
Sculpted by Aimee, the makeup brand and academy, surveyed over 1,000 people and discovered more than half found it difficult to match their lip to a liner. And this is why it's recently launched the Lip Duo, with each item on either end of the product. Choose from six colours, £17 each or £85 for the full set. sculptedbyaimee.com

4 Lamination kit
Create fluffy, on-trend eyebrows at home with this DIY six-piece kit. It comes with cleanser, glue, lift, fix and keratin solutions, plus tools and complete instructions that should take less than 30 minutes to complete. £40, brow-hq.com

5 Sustainable sets
Shop the UK's first not-for-profit sustainable fashion business based in the UK, ORIGIN, helping drive humanitarian projects in the communities from which its fabrics originate: Mali, Ethiopia and Gambia. Its fashion gift sets include a mix of T-shirts, earrings and accessories from £27.50. There are kids' sets too. originafrika.co.uk

TRIED & TESTED TECH

Gel nails at home
This DIY LED-cured gel nail kit uses natural ingredients such as sugar cane, manioc, corn, wheat and cotton. And no acetone is needed as it can be removed with normal nail polish. You'll need the base coat, colour coat (there are 30 to choose from), top coat and LED lamp; kits start at £55. manicurist.com

The shaver
Philips' S9000 Prestige shaver can glide over your skin even with seven days of growth. The SkinComfort rings have an anti-friction coating, so you can get an extremely close shave without irritation. From £330, philips.co.uk

2-in-1 Curling Waver
Toni & Guy has cleverly combined two trends in one tool. Place your hair between the plates for a deep barrel wave, or keep the plates together and wrap your hair around the outside to use as a thick curling wand for beach waves. You can also adjust the heat to help minimise any damage. £39,99 amazon.co.uk

DELILAH PURE LIGHT LIQUID RADIANCE IN HALO, £32
"This is liquid gold in a bottle. My favourite way to use this is to mix a few drops into my foundation, but recently I've also started buffing it on to my cheekbones with a flat brush to up the glow factor."

NUDESTIX NUDES GLOW IN BUBBLY BEBE, £30
"Cream highlighters are always a winner, as they give a sweat-inspired look (sounds gross but trust me, looks great). This one is blendable with a built-in brush for easy on-the-go application."

CIATÉ MARBLED LIGHT ILLUMINATING POWDER IN CASHMERE, £24
"Part highlighter, part pressed powder, this is a wonder product. It not only keeps shine at bay but gives a luminous finish. Apply all over, then add extra on cheekbones for a little lift."

The Retro Winged Eyeliner and Classic Lip

When I think of this look, I immediately think of vintage glamour. Admittedly this is more of a classic look, but it can be easily strep up - shaping or playing with the thickness of the line. Most eye shapes can suit this look, and if your eyes are hooded you just need to keep the eyeliner finer and smaller to lift and shape the eyes. A red lip can be seen as a better choice, but there are many ways to wear a red lip if you follow some basic rules, starting off by finding the right shade of red - they can vary from blue-based, through pinky shades to deep oranges and browns. Still fresh too huh!

Try just adding colour to the centre of your lips and then using your fingers to blend it out. This is a great way to introduce colour without full-on impact. A couple of coats - don't wear a lip liner to outline your lips, especially if you want that perfect crisp outline and have a concern on steadily to correct any errors or to sharpen the edges.

OX Weddings suggests:

- NYD Vegan Beauty 'Tattoo Liner' in 'Trooper Black' has built a reputation as one of the very best long-wearing liners. £18 boots.com
- We love Delilah Gel Line Eye & Brow for its versatility. A teeny amount loaded onto a fine-tipped brush will give smudge-resistant precision. £20 delilahcosmetics.com
- If you're not comfortable with liquid liner, or prefer the looser effect of a pencil, Charlotte Tilbury 'Rock n' Roll' 'Bedroom Black' Eyeliner is creamy and tug-free to apply but has outstanding staying power. £17 charlottetilbury.com
- Yves Saint Laurent's 'Rouge Par Couture' is loaded with pigment and is lightweight, buildable and matte. £30 essential.com
- Line lips with a creamy pencil which won't pull at the edges of your mouth. 'Stay All Day!' Lip Liner glides on and doesn't budge. £14.50 stila.co.uk
- Replicate that glorious shine with Kevyn Aucoin Neo Highlighter Sahara which incorporates three best-selling colours in one gorgeous graduated palette. £30 cultbeauty.co.uk

L.A. Girl Volumatic E7
agricosmetics.co.uk

Budget beauty brand, L.A. Girl is rapidly becoming my favourite pre-payday go-to. This water-resistant option will positively inflate your natural lashes, coating them in your choice of deepest black, brown or even blue, green and purple. Again, care is needed to apply without smudging around the lash line, but I really like the wand, which starts off chunky and dwindles to a thinner tip, great for precision priming.

Delilah Intense Day to Night Bulldozer
Mascara £24 delilahcosmetics.com

If you're after full-on drama, an old-school wax and pigment formula could be your preferred. The beeswax in Delilah mascaras is synthetic, in-keeping with their vegan philosophy. One coat will give discernible but restrained colour and definition to the eye. Keep building though, if you're after the full Bambi effect.

THIS MONTH I'M INSPIRED BY...
BEING PERFECT

November is a milestone month for me. By the time you read this I will have crossed the divide into my 50s and as I write this, I'm feeling pretty positive. However, as you doubtless know, magazines are produced some weeks in advance of the issue date, perhaps by the time I get to the big day existential angst will have got the better of me.

In common with many, if not all, my plans have had to adapt several times over the last few months as new guidelines have been implemented and then revisited. What should have been four nights in Ibiza with my MagniScents Six plus a celebratory party with family and friends has been shelved. Not ideal and not the 'perfect' way of embracing this landmark birthday.

Which got me thinking about perfect and being perfect, and all the ways in which the pursuit of perfection preoccupies me. My 'perfect' celebration space, as a fashion and beauty editor, I'm constantly seeking the 'perfect' black dress (or red lipstick, or how to achieve 'perfect' skin, as a mother I strive to be everything my child needs in any given moment (teacher, coach, boundary-prover, cook, chef, cuddler) and as a daughter, wife and friend, meeting the bar of perfection is a well-documented juggling act, but it occurs to me that already perfection isn't an empirical concept, a hard fact. In fact it's highly subjective.

A few weeks ago I was honoured to receive The Fragrance Foundation's Jeanine Award 'Rising Star'. Yes, at 50. Does this make me a slow burner? It should have been presented at a glittering ceremony in central London but due to... well, you know what... the ceremony was held in virtual space, meaning that I was watching from the side as the winners were announced. Instead of a glamorous frock, I was in joggers and a slightly stained T-shirt. Very not perfect. The category was designed for writers new to the subject - which I am. But at my age I am hardly new to much else. After I whooped myself hoarse, I had one of those out-of-body experiences where you stop and think. Here I was, a large, capable woman, sloppily dressed and yet, these apparent lacks of perfection hadn't thwarted me. In that moment something wonderful had happened and life was - by any metric - perfect.

HEALTH MATTERS

THE LOCKDOWN LOOK

1. 2. 3. 4.

While we usually look to the catwalks for the latest trends, celebrity make-up artist Rupert Kingston has no doubt that the events of 2020 will have had a huge impact on the coming year.

Rupert began his career as a makeup artist nearly 20 years ago, working in film, television and fashion, making up top models from Kate Winslet to Naomi Campbell. He currently works the globe as a freelance of organic cosmetics brand Delilah, but still finds time to work on photo shoots and backstage at London Fashion Week.

Unexpectedly for spring, we will see a return to natural and glowing skin, but with so many of us having ditched the make-up for months at a time this year, we will see a real emphasis on cosmetics that promise 'less is best'. Subtly perfecting skin with primers and concealers will be a refreshing turnaround from the heavy coverage faces we have seen for the last few years.

Throughout lockdown, celebrities and influencers alike mentioned each other to give 'always wear' advice on social media, so long-term brand engagement. This, paired with the new marketing-focus on top, meant that makeup reviews were more about applying a couple of products for a quick advice meeting or answering the door in the Amazon store, rather than applying a full face.

1. To add some glow, reach for blusher and mascara. Fresh pastel toned cheeks tell the world you are the person of health and flourishing lakes with vibrant 'hoody tones' symbolise nature's return to life, capturing the new mood for makeup.

Big eyes will continue on strong and thickly mascara formulations, as eyes are long gone. This Intense Deep-Night Mascara stays soft and flexible, which means you can add more throughout the day adapting your look as you need to.

2. Using a great deep looking concealer or long-lasting serum will help with the finish, glow, and some well-placed illuminating powder (highlighting is dead!) will achieve the subtly shimmering look.

3. Makeup brands have had to keep up with multifunctional products, so get ready for cream sticks that will work on eyes, lips and cheeks; very useful as rules around wearing masks (especially) start to relax.

Hopefully sunscreen cream can get ready to celebrate the return of lipstick! As always for spring the emphasis will be on water, but don't be afraid to get on those highlighters, use your fingers and buff the colour in like a lip balm, for that 'hoody kissed look'.

4. Brows have finally seen full circle, moving from heavy makeup and fill-in, the new trend will be a more natural looking arch with a few stray, effectively polished. Brow Shape Defining Brow Gel

THE BEST ECO-FRIENDLY CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR UNDER €200

VEGAN LUXURY MAKE-UP

If you're looking for gifts to give to someone who lives and breathes make-up - then look no further than the new collections from delilah.

We're a particular fan of the nude lip collection (€42), as the products are really high-quality and the colours are beautiful.

To make things even better, delilah is a PETA-certified cruelty-free brand. That means there's no animal testing conducted or commissioned for any of their products, and they don't sell in any markets which require animal testing either.

So you can enjoy a smokey eye, knowing it's entirely vegan.

CLASSIC COSMETICS

Hester Grainger catches up with Rupert Kingston, creative director and co-founder of delilah. Rupert shares the secret behind why you should always wear primer

Where did it all begin?
This is going to sound a bit woo woo, but I honestly had a very powerful 'aha' moment when I was working at a trade show in Las Vegas. I had been working as a creative director for a white doing brand and product development within the make-up industry.

I had got to thinking about what it would feel like to meet someone and find out by chance that they had my product in their handbag. I was suddenly struck by a very strong feeling that I had been in that moment before. Now, I am not into that sort of thing, so something pushed me to make

I had all the experience and the contacts that I needed to get this thing moving. I came home from the trip and told my wife, Juliet (who's my business partner), and to my total surprise she was completely on board. Juliet had her own business as a photographer at the time, but it was her drive and passion for detail that helped to really complete the concept for delilah.

We loved the idea that you could elevate the packaging so that the products looked and felt gorgeous, we were inspired by the timeless beauty of the old-fashioned compacts and lipsticks, products that looked and felt precious. Once we had made the

'I started my career over 25 years ago as a make-up artist, before being a make-up artist was a thing!'

It seems to go ahead, the look and feel of that brand was very special. She showed this idea of a simplistic approach to colour and an absolute desire to create ethical formulations that truly perform.

What did you do before launching delilah?
I started my career over 25 years ago as a make-up artist (before being a make-up artist was a thing). I was lucky enough to work all over the world in film, television and fashion. I began to work with brands on product concepts and eventually began working as a creative director overseeing brand concepts and product launches. I have worked with some of the biggest beauty brands and helped develop small independent brands too; it was this experience that helped to spot a gap in the market for delilah.

On graduating from the London College of Fashion in the early 90s I pretty much started working straight away as a make-up artist. I love the industry still and am fascinated by product design and the way that products fit into people's lifestyles. I come from a creative background, so I have always been inspired by colour, texture and self-expression. Although make-up can be transformative it can also be a delicate tool for self-expression and we love to have stories about how our products have had a positive effect on people's lives.

Tell us about being cruelty free
This was really important to us from launch. Although 'testing cosmetics on animals' is banned in most of the world, it is still compulsory in China if you want to sell your products there. What people often don't know is that many of the luxury brands that we know, and love are carrying out animal testing so that they can sell in these markets.

We are a family of animal lovers and in 2020 became certified by PETA, as well as becoming fully vegan to give our customer confidence that they can make an ethical choice when it comes to purchasing luxury beauty products.

Why is it important that your products are all free from parabens?
Within the beauty industry, 'the Paraben debate' rages on. Parabens are a type of preservative that have been used in cosmetic products for decades. A few studies in the last decade or so have thrown up questions about the safety of these ingredients.

Delilah Cosmetics

We've had our eye on Delilah cosmetics for a while and are so pleased they're constantly expanding their range as they have beautiful products in sophisticated packaging, one to rival Charlotte Tilbury we think. Charlotte Tilbury's products are nice, but not worth the price as they're not highly pigmented, they don't stay on all day and the pencils are only half full and impossible to sharpen (from the eyeliners to lip liners) while the highlighters become compacted and unusable after just a couple of uses.

Delilah is different, much different, soft colours, decadent palettes, powders that last and demure results. They really are one to try out if you love the natural look and appreciate high quality cosmetics that are great value for money.
