

All the World's a Stage by Jayne Seagrave

Bard on the Beach has long been a cultural mainstay in the Lower Mainland, and Jayne Seagrave's new book captures the magic behind this long-running performance art showcase. Started in 1990, Bard on the Beach brings thousands of visitors to the Kitsilano area each summer with a variety of Shakespeare plays gracing the stage, making it one of the most successful theatre companies in the world. All the World's a Stage tells the stories behind these plays and how they come to our region each year, with tons of local references that Lower Mainlanders will love.

Encircled Travel Clothing

Picking from a million items in your closet is overwhelming, and some fabrics wrinkle and don't perform well when travelling or otherwise on the go. Encircled is solving this problem with a line of multipurpose clothing that is ethically made and sourced (designed and sewn in Toronto), with luxurious fabrics that don't look frumpy, even after a day of wear or hours stuffed in a suitcase. Workers are paid fair wages, materials are eco-friendly and the durability of this clothing line is absolutely stunning. We love the Chrysalis Cardi and Revolve Dress for versatility and comfort, whether dressed up or down, at home or on the road.

Mabel's Labels Camp Kits

Every parent has fallen victim to sending their little one off to camp, only to have them return with half their belongings missing. It can be hard to keep track of clothes, goggles, towels and water bottles when everyone is carrying the same thing! Thankfully, Mabel's Labels makes handy sleepaway and day camp packs that will remind your child which treasures are theirs. You'll save money (and tears) when things go astray, and kids will love the huge selection colours and designs, all personalized with their own name.

Hello Humpback by Roy Henry Vickers and Robert Budd

The Lower Mainland is full of nature and scenic views, and nothing is more treasured than catching a glimpse of a whale. This beautiful board book for little readers ages two to six will delight adults and children alike with the stunning images and story that tells of our local ecosystems, visiting with a variety of animals and natural landscapes. Kids will not only love the story and its images, but will also develop an appreciation and love for the environment and First Nations origins and stories.
