

FARM MADE CHOCOLATE

In 2014 Mackie's converted their old tractor shed to be able to give their customers what they had been asking for...Chocolate! On the 1,600 acre Westertown Farm in Aberdeenshire, wind provides power for the farm that grows the crops to feed the cows who make the milk (and cream) to make ice cream and chocolate.

Mackie's refine, conche and temper their own recipes on the farm.

Mackie's have around 280 black and white Holstein milking cows, which make very popular dairy cows due to their high milk production (at about 4% butterfat), good temperament and their being strong and healthy. Every cow has a specialized collar that is used for their unique milking process. These cows are free to eat, drink, ruminate and rest and be milked according to their own natural biorhythms.
