Since the 14th century, potion makers have resided at Shambles Street in York, “The real Diagon Alley” and once an inspiration for the famous story of Harry Potter. The first known potion maker was Phileas Fry who came to York in 1335 on a mission to help the needy and heal the sick. To try and hide the magic at work Phileas built a secret Potion room at the back of the apothecary. This is where he first created Potions that were legendary.

Pick up the potion, turn it upside down, and rotate three times.

Then experience the magic. The Potions experience is a must for young wizards. It's silly, a little spooky and has a sprinkle of sorcery. Adults enjoy them as well as a wicked cocktail mixer.

The story begins in 1886 when Walter Whittard started selling the finest tea, coffee and hot chocolate in London with the approach to "buy the best". When Walter Whittard first set up his store, he had no idea what the next century or so would bring. It's a story of tradition, war and disaster, survival, success, innovation and creativity...

Over 135 years later, the never-ending curiosity to find unique blends and distinctive tastes lives on at Whittard.

They still scour the world for the best single origin varieties, from the very best tea to limited edition coffees.

We are at the very beginning of the Renaissance... native of Nantes, France , Anne de Bretagne has just married the King of France, Louis XXII. Passionate about art, she received the House of Medici, in Florence. To honor her guests, she asks her cook to invent new culinary pleasures. Having worked in Italy, he lovingly combines chocolate and butter, topped with orange zest and almonds to create subtle chocolate "palets." This is how the Florentines were born.
