NELLEULLA

CHOCOLATE FROM THE FOREST

In an ancient language Nelleulla means - a golden light. Liene and Laura's chocolates capture the spirit of their native Latvia. They are surrounded by the largest and wildest, most northern European forests. Nelleulla's design and creative theme is inspired by the Nordic winters and the magical Northern Lights.

Traditional French fancy truffle, creamy, melt-in-your-mouth and delicately sprinkled with cocoa.

With 80 years of experience, Guyaux's chocolates from Paris offer French traditional chocolate recipes such as their "old-fashioned" praline: 50% sugar, 50% hazelnuts and "artisanal" type manufacturing processes which give each product a little "unique" side.

Authenticity also requires a rigorous selection of raw materials: 100% pure cocoa butter chocolate couverture, Isigny AOC caramel with Guérande IGP salt, Sao Tomé chocolate, Swiss milk chocolate couverture, no preservatives, artificial flavor or coloring.

Cémoi is a French chocolate manufacturer founded in 1814 in Arles-sur-Tech, Pyrénées-Orientales. It is today the largest French chocolate manufacturer. CÉMOI masters the entire chain from bean to bar. They know the pleasure in chocolate is its taste, but there is also the sensorial stimulation that accompanies the tasting; the presentation, the history, the smell, the shine of the chocolate, the moment when the chocolate melts in the mouth and its aromatic notes take over...

The intense wave of mint that hits you when you open a box of Summerdown transports you straight to the fields in Hampshire farm, a peppermint playground for peacocks, bees and butterflies.

Black Mitcham is an extraordinary peppermint prized for its pure, bright character. It's a taste that had been all but lost to England, until we began cultivating it ourselves three decades ago.

Since the 14th century, potion makers have resided at Shambles Street in York, “The real Diagon Alley” and once an inspiration for the famous story of Harry Potter. The first known potion maker was Phileas Fry who came to York in 1335 on a mission to help the needy and heal the sick. To try and hide the magic at work Phileas built a secret Potion room at the back of the apothecary. This is where he first created Potions that were legendary.

Pick up the potion, turn it upside down, and rotate three times.

Then experience the magic. The Potions experience is a must for young wizards. Adults enjoy them as well, as a sparkling cocktail mixer.

In 1768, a young Master Baker, Charles Fortwenger, opened a workshop making tasty gingerbread in Gertwiller, France. Two centuries later, Fortwenger's famous gingerbread is still made with respect for the traditions of its founder: quality ingredients, a little pinch of greed....and a large measure of expertise!

The preparation of the mother dough, shaping of the various pieces, baking, and hand decoration with colored sugar. These are the skills that require a lightness of touch and a love of the craft.

We are at the very beginning of the Renaissance... native of Nantes, France , Anne de Bretagne has just married the King of France, Louis XXII. Passionate about art, she received the House of Medici, in Florence. To honor her guests, she asks her cook to invent new culinary pleasures. Having worked in Italy, he lovingly combines chocolate and butter, topped with orange zest and almonds to create subtle chocolate "palets." This is how the Florentines were born.

A festive winter street scene with a telephone booth, a bus, and snow-covered buildings. The scene is set in a city street with a cobblestone path. On the left, there is a classic telephone booth with a sign that says "TELEPHONE". The street is lined with buildings, some with snow on their roofs and windows. A bus is visible on the right side of the street. The sky is dark with falling snow and some bright stars or lights. The overall atmosphere is cozy and holiday-themed.
