There are still other ways. Ways often tried out, and just as safe. Who the hell knows how that bomb with nitroglycerine happened to be in an innocent-looking case among the cargo? We had better arrest a couple of anarchists and well-known communists, search their lodgings, and find a few similar bombs right under their beds in an old leather bag. The judges and the gentlemen of the board and all the experts who testify in court hate anarchists and communists; they know that all communists do such nasty things, and so the insurance is paid. The judge does not pay. Nor do the gentlemen of the board. The underwriters pay. They also hate communists. So this case helps them to make better laws against communists and criminal syndicalists. It was not our business to worry about which way it would be done this time. Fact is, we had no time to find out. The whole affair happened, even to us who were prepared, at a time and moment when we

About the Typeface

COLROY is a superbly and subtly crafted contemporary Clarendon-like typeface. Some of its many advantages are perfect suitability for body text usage, marvellous italics and covers up to 86 languages. Furthermore it supports small caps and various opentype features. Compared to existing Clarendon-like typefaces it is slightly more geometricized but still has the vividness which you have come to appreciate in traditional Clarendon typefaces.

After Hermann Eidenbenz redrew the original Clarendon for the Haas'sche Schriftgiesserei in Münchenstein in the early 1950s, it took more than 60 years until Marc Droz (dreh gmbh) created with the Colroy a modern and thoroughly crafted and clarendon-like slab serif that stands in the Swiss tradition of strong and somehow understated typefaces.

The creation of Colroy started in 2009 during the CAS Typedesign at the Zurich University of the Arts and was completed as a font family with six cuts by 2014.

About the Designer

MARC DROZ lives and works in Zurich. In 1989 he completed his apprenticeship as a graphic designer in the Studio U. Hiestand. From 1990–2011 he ran his own studio and worked in the field of print- and motion design as well as architectural visualization. 2011 he graduated in CAS Type Design at the Zurich University of the Arts. In 2011 he founded with Regula Ehrliholzer the graphic design studio „dreh gmbh – bureau for professional deformation“.
