“…wonderful music, wonderfully performed… sit back and let these glorious sounds fill your ears and lift your spirits.”

GRAMOPHONE

Compilation by: Robin Tyson – podiummusic.co.uk
Re-mastering: Tom Mungall (Floating Earth)
Cover image: Basilica i Temple Expiatori de la Sagrada Família, Barcelona, Spain
Design: Andrew Giles – discoyd@aegidius.org.uk

For further information about recordings on CORO or live performances and tours by The Sixteen, call +44 (0) 20 7936 3420 or email coro@thesixteen.com

© 2019 The Sixteen Productions Ltd.
© 2019 The Sixteen Productions Ltd.

To find out more about The Sixteen, concert tours, and to buy CDs visit www.thesixteen.com <table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CD1</th>
<th>CD2</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. G.F. Handel</td>
<td>1. Igor Stravinsky</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. James MacMillan</td>
<td>2. Frank Martin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Henry Purcell</td>
<td>5. Thomas Tallis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Gregorio Allegri</td>
<td>6. Henry Purcell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. Claudio Monteverdi</td>
<td>7. G.F. Handel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. Diogo Dias Melgás</td>
<td>8. Olivier Messiaen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10. Arvo Pärt</td>
<td>10. Alonso Lobo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12. Thomas Tallis</td>
<td>12. Claudio Monteverdi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15. G.F. Handel</td>
<td>15. W.A. Mozart</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17. Robert Parsons</td>
<td>17. Howard Skempton</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18. John Plummer</td>
<td>18. Morten Lauridsen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total Running Time: 76.12 | Total Running Time: 72.51

CD1

- How excellent thy name (from Saul HWV 53)
- O Radiant Dawn (From The Strathclyde Motets)
- Surge amica mea
- O Domine Jesu Christe
- Remember not, Lord, our offences (Z 50)
- Miserere (Evolution version)
- Deus in adiutorium meum intende (from Vespers of 1610 SV 206)
- Salve Regina
- Hymn for the Dormition of the Mother of God
- The Deer’s Cry
- Lay a garland
- O nata lux
- Haec dies
- Bring us, O Lord God
- Let thy hand be strengthened (from Coronation Anthem Let thy hand be strengthened HWV 259)
- In manus tuas I
- Ave Maria
- Tota pulchra es
- Sanctus (from Requiem)
- Gott der Herr ist Sonn’ und Schild (from Cantata 79 BWV 79)

Total Running Time: 76.12

CD2

- Exaudi orationem meam Domine (from Symphony of Psalms)
- Sanctus and Benedictus (from Mass for double choir)
- Kyrie eleison II (from Mass in B minor BWV 232)
- Ave Maria
- Miserere nostri
- Symphony / O sing unto the Lord (from O sing unto the Lord Z 44)
- And the glory of the Lord (from Messiah HWV 56)
- Cinq Rechants: I
- The Gallant Weaver
- Versa est in luctum
- Sanctus (from Mass in G FP 89)
- Gloria (from Messa a quattro voci SV 190)
- Herr, nun lässest du deinen Diener (SWV 432)
- Benedictio et claritas
- Dixit Dominus (from Vespers K 339)
- Balulalow (from A Ceremony of Carols, Op. 28)
- Adam lay ybounden
- O magnus mysterium
- This little Babe (from A Ceremony of Carols, Op. 28)
- Your voices tune (from Alexander's Feast HWV 75)

Total Running Time: 72.51
Welcome to The Sixteen’s 40th anniversary album. Can it really be 40 years since a fledgling group of singers gave their first concert in May 1979? To celebrate this milestone in our life, my good friend Robin Tyson has waded through our extensive catalogue and chosen 40 tracks which display the group’s incredible versatility.

Whether you are experiencing The Sixteen for the first time or are a regular follower of our work, I am sure you will be surprised by the sheer range of music and styles we have covered over the years. It has actually been quite a revelation to me.

Thank you to everyone involved in The Sixteen for making those 40 years such a joy.

Two thoughts top so many about The Sixteen. The first, recalled countless times in reviews and feature articles, concerns its place in a tradition of great British choral singing, unbroken since Tudor times and with roots stretching deep into the medieval past. The second concerns its profound influence on the tradition to which it belongs. The recordings on this album, chosen from the mighty CORO catalogue, reflect the very best of tradition, the transmission from one generation to the next of the sheer pleasure of superlative ensemble singing and the collective knowledge of how it’s done. Yet they also tell a story of tradition refreshed and remade.

The Sixteen’s ruby anniversary tracklist contains delicacies from the Polish Baroque and the Counter-Reformation sounds of Palestrina and Victoria, exquisite miniatures by Messiaen and Stravinsky and modern masterworks by MacMillan, Pärt and Tavener. There’s room for pieces once owned by mammoth amateur choral societies: Messiah and Alexander’s Feast, Bach’s Mass in B minor, even Monteverdi’s Vespers and Fauré’s Requiem. Anglican anthems, a jewel among Victorian partsongs, Allegri’s legendary Miserere, the music of private devotion and public ritual – parts of a musical mix at once diverse and discerning, matched to The Sixteen’s strengths of vibrant sound, immaculate intonation and intelligent musicianship.

Over the past 40 years The Sixteen has helped transform attitudes to choral music, not least by reaching out to new audiences as The Voices of Classic FM, creating red-letter dates in cathedral cities around the UK with its annual Choral Pilgrimage, flying the flag for professional British choirs overseas, and enhancing the international repertoire with such major commissions as James MacMillan’s O bone Jesu and Stabat mater. While the Oxbridge collegiate choral scene remains a rich recruiting ground, The Sixteen has promoted the net-widening process with Genesis Sixteen, a de facto apprenticeship programme designed to nurture the next generation of ace ensemble singers.
The group's readiness to confront convention while preserving past wisdom, and the scale and scope of its repertoire, flow directly from its founder's nature. Harry Christophers was fortunate indeed to be a boy chorister at Canterbury Cathedral and choral scholar at Oxford's Magdalen College, led by choirmasters with minds open to new music, whether freshly made or rescued from dusty archives. Allan Wicks at Canterbury and Bernard Rose at Magdalen belonged to a generation of church musicians raised under the long shadow of the Victorian age. While Magdalen College Choir was known for its unusually wide repertoire, its sound quality remained subpar until Rose, a D-Day veteran and former prisoner of war, arrived as organist and Informator Choristarum in 1957. He replaced Magdalen's venerable lay clerks with hand-picked undergraduate choral scholars, and set standards that frequently matched and occasionally surpassed the best on offer from the Cambridge college choirs of King's and St John's.

Harry Christophers joined Rose's choir in the early 1970s and learned about choral discipline and wholehearted musical expression from the plain-speaking Yorkshireman. He also absorbed lasting lessons from David Wulstan, a former Magdalen alto, whose pioneering performances of early Tudor polyphony with the Clerkes of Oxenford set a high bar – and pitch – for others to match. The Sixteen emerged from Magdalen's marriage of tradition and renewal. The group's nucleus was formed in November 1977 for a supposedly one-off concert, given by Christophers and a handful of college friends at the request of Peter Nelson, a regular at Magdalen evensong with a passion for Tudor music. They performed his favourite sacred pieces and did so sans corporate name or future plans. The evening's success led to further concerts over the following year and the official birth of The Sixteen, delivered at Magdalen College Chapel on Saturday 5 May 1979, with a programme of works by Mundy, Purcell, Humfrey and Schütz. The freshly named ensemble gave their first London performance a week later at St John's, Smith Square, and soon caught the ear of John Shuttleworth, recent co-founder of Meridian Records, a small independent classical label known for its 'natural sound'.

Meridian booked The Sixteen to record an inspired programme of motets from the Eton Choirbook, the leading source of late 15th-century English sacred music. Salve Regina, recorded in October 1980, proved a revelation. Although the slender Eton Choirbook discography contained an earlier benchmark recorded by the Purcell Consort, The Sixteen's debut album was in a class of its own. Those who bought Salve Regina and its 1982 companion discovered music as ornate as the fan-vaulted ceiling of King's College Chapel and pitched almost as high. And what discoveries! Here were works by men named Cornysh and Browne, Lambe and Wylkynson, as English as they come, to compare with the best and strikingly different compositions of their continental contemporaries.

It would have been easy, but almost certainly fatal, for The Sixteen and its conductor to have built their home in the land of late-medieval English Latin church music. Harry Christophers wisely determined not to limit his repertoire choices by time or place. The early Tudors remained a focus of The Sixteen's work in concert and on disc during its first decade but not an obsession. Their discography grew with pioneering recordings of music by Robert Fayrfax, John Taverner and John Sheppard, a reconstruction of Monteverdi's Vespers for the Feast of Santa Barbara, Bach's motets, Handel's Messiah and Chandos Anthems, and an album of Christmas music from medieval and Renaissance Europe. The Symphony of Harmony and Invention, billed today as The Orchestra of The Sixteen, was formed in 1986 for the group's first performance of Messiah. Its creation opened doors to fresh repertoire adventures and grand projects at home and overseas.

It's hard to imagine now a time before The Sixteen, when most of the Eton Choirbook's music rested silent in the pages of three great scholarly tomes, when exemplary technical consistency was more dream than reality, and living composers seemed determined to punish choristers with scores fraught with larynx-eroding salvos of sound. The 40 tracks on this album, music of such ineffable beauty, span compositions from five centuries and more. They offer a sense, too, of The Sixteen's role in shaping choral music's present and creating ideal conditions for its flourishing.
G.F. HANDEL

How excellent thy name (from Saul HWV 53)

After approximately 10 minutes of introduction/overture, we get the idea, enough already, lovely strings, lovely organ blah, blah and then it hits you, the power, the force, the weight of beautiful human voices ‘How excellent’. Wonderful on disc and spine-chilling on stage, Handel wrote one of the truly great opening scenes in all of oratorio and brings the choir, orchestra and audience to the most thrilling climax with the final ‘Alleluia’. You know you’re in for an aural three-Michelin-starred feast thereafter. Once experienced never forgotten.

Christopher Purves, bass

James MACMILLAN

O Radiant Dawn (from The Strathclyde Motets)

I love the lucid simplicity of Jimmy’s piece, it works so well amongst some of the more complex and intricate music we sing. I feel it’s almost mantra-like in the repetition of phrases; the opening as a salutation and the closing ‘Amens’ – so moving in their quiet, still, insistence.

Kim Porter, alto

G.P. da PALESTRINA

Surge amica mea

This piece of polyphony hits you right between the eyes. For two-and-a-half minutes (depending how enthusiastic the speed) it canters along, slowing only to frame particular sensual moments in the text – this is the Song of Songs after all. The listener is swept along on a wave of persuasion.

Emilia Morton, soprano

Tomás Luis de VICTORIA

O Domine Jesu Christe

Having been singing since the age of seven it’s quite rare to come across a piece which I have yet to sing! Discovering new repertoire is one of the many joys of singing for The Sixteen. This work is everything one might expect from the genius of Victoria: evocative text setting, vivid harmonic writing and expressive counterpoint. The build-up to ‘...and given gall to drink’ is thrilling! Victoria’s faith shines through in his music, and this is no exception.

Daniel Collins, alto

Henry PURCELL

Remember not, Lord, our offences (Z 50)

I sang this beautiful and very moving anthem in one of the early concerts given by The Sixteen on a bitterly cold February evening in St Margaret’s Church, Westminster. Memorable for the warmth and emotional intensity which Harry Christophers brought to conducting this music, I knew I was part of a very special group.

Richard Price, tenor (Founding Member)

Gregorio ALLEGRI

Miserere (Evolution version)

Allegri’s Miserere is undoubtedly one of the best-known pieces we perform and this evolved version is very beautiful and is interesting to both listener and singer. It holds a special place for people, for different reasons. For me, having sung the famous high Cs on numerous occasions, it is the many venues the solo quartet has sung from – an organ loft, a broom cupboard, a stairwell, a bathroom, even a bar (unfortunately not serving at the time)!

Charlotte Mobbs, soprano

Claudio MONTEVERDI

Deus in adiutorium meum intende (from Vespers of 1610 SV 206)

Monteverdi’s Vespers of 1610 is, to me, quite simply one of the finest pieces ever written. It is a virtuosic display of breathtaking flair and sensitivity, absolutely jammed with highlights. And it packs a punch right from the off – you get a short intonation and then POW! the spine-tingling, brassy sound of Venice launches you on this wonderful journey. I could never tire of it.

Mark Dobell, tenor
This track brings back wonderful memories of my early days as a member of The Sixteen. I’m reminded of the team spirit, the friendships formed, and the discovering of music such as this. Listening to this album again put me in mind of many beautiful concerts in Portugal…and Lisbon in particular, including two weeks working on Monteverdi’s Ulysses, where we immersed ourselves in the culture and food, and almost certainly came back a kilo or two heavier than when we started!

Carolyn Sampson, soprano

I remember being very moved by this piece was when I was an 18-year-old choral scholar at Exeter Cathedral. I was struck by the meditative, tranquil mood of the music, especially in the final section’s rich texture which has a very low second bass part moving in parallel fifths with the soprano.

Stuart Young, Bass

The Deer’s Cry is such a memorable piece for a couple of reasons. I was lucky enough to be a member of the inaugural year of Genesis Sixteen and it was one of the first pieces I remember working on and loving. The Deer’s Cry Choral Pilgrimage was my first as a regular member of The Sixteen and this piece by Pärt was the highlight of the programme for me.

Edward McMullan, alto

Lay a garland is such a magical piece; although the poetry and music are profoundly sad, it is heart-breakingly beautiful. Pearsall expertly builds tension and a sense of mourning as he gradually adds layers creating stunning suspensions across parts. The piece is a wonderful example of 19th-century part-writing at its finest.

Emily Walker, Concerts & Artistic Planning Manager

Whenever I hear this stunning little miniature I’m transported back to my first months with The Sixteen where it formed part of the repertoire for the 2005 Choral Pilgrimage as well as a rather eventful tour to the USA! I’ve listened to it hundreds of times but its simplicity is exquisite and I still stop what I’m doing whenever I hear it.

Cath Edwards, CORO Record Label Manager

I have sung Byrd’s Haec dies so many times over the years in services and concerts that I still know the alto line by heart. It is a gem of a piece. Short, but perfectly formed, with a delightful dancing time change for ‘Let us rejoice and be glad in it’.

Robin Barda, alto (Founding Member)

I love this piece! It has always been a personal favourite ever since I was a chorister at St Paul’s, especially as we sang it at my final evensong there. Beautiful text by John Donne, wonderfully rich harmonic textures, and a magical final chord.

George Pooley, tenor
Amongst some of my earliest memories of performing with The Sixteen, Let thy hand be strengthened is simply a joy to sing. The slow middle movement contains, for me, one of the most spine-tingling musical moments: the suspension on the first utterance of ‘Let mercy and truth go...’ Just magical.

Alexandra Kidgell, soprano

In manus tuas I

Sheppard’s music has been a significant part of my life ever since I was introduced to it by David Wulstan and the Clerkes of Oxenford in my student years, around the time that its long overdue revival got going. Boldly unconventional, quirky and distinctive: at other times profoundly serene and searingly beautiful music. Imagine yourself at the evening service of Compline in a candlelit chapel as you hear In manus tuas Domine; overnight survival was not a given, then or even now.

Sally Dunkley, soprano (Founding Member)

Ave Maria

Sitting with my eyes closed, enveloped in the simple but serene polyphony of Parsons’ Ave Maria, I remember counting my blessings to be working for The Sixteen. The glorious Ave Maria seemed to epitomise The Sixteen’s mantra of ‘taking music back to the venues for which it was written’ as the music – with its steady and lush polyphony culminating in its lengthy glorious ‘Amen’ – soared up and round the rafters. That was more than a decade ago in early 2008, and The Sixteen’s mission of taking this wonderful choral heritage around the length and breadth of the UK remains one of the things I admire most about the group. I heard the Parsons in over 20 of the UK’s finest churches and cathedrals and it was the soundtrack to my first year with The Sixteen.

Marie-Sophie Willis, Chief Executive

Sanctus (from Requiem)

In Faure’s Requiem, the Sanctus is a moment of ethereal stillness, and one where the sopranos in particular get to shine – it’s a movement I’ve always loved singing, and being a part of The Sixteen soprano line I felt like one of a chorus of angels, the ‘chorus angelorum’ we were singing about! The simplicity of the music, the purity of the vocal line, and the shaping of the text all combine to make this movement one into which I can pour my heart and soul.

Elin Manahan Thomas, soprano

Gott der Herr ist Sonn’ und Schild (from Cantata 79 BWV 79)

This might be Bach’s most emphatically and insistently joyous work. 13 independent and virtuosic parts weave a texture so ambitious, so demanding, so richly detailed it overwhelms our ears and minds. The reward, though, is a shared and unadulterated emotional response: elation. I am a convinced (or, at least, contented) humanist, but Bach’s musical affirmation of faith not only has me believing in the possibility of God’s power and protection, but briefly certain of it.

Joseph Crouch, cello
Igor STRAVINSKY  Exaudi orationem meam Domine (from Symphony of Psalms)

My recollection of this piece is that we sang it on one of the group's many tours of the magnificent concert halls and cathedrals of Spain performing it alongside Fauré's Requiem with the BBC Philharmonic Orchestra. The singers were in one bus and the orchestra in another but the orchestral bus had the best seat layout at the back for our favourite card game, Contract Whist, which helped to pass the time between venues, so we swapped buses! Needless to say I normally won!

Christopher Royall, alto (Founding Member)

Frank MARTIN  Sanctus and Benedictus (from Mass for double choir)

Martin was a deeply religious man, brought up in a strictly Calvinist family and, due to this faith (he felt religious expression was a personal communication between Man and God, not for public consumption), this remains his only published, unaccompanied choral work. It is a very sensuous piece and, despite its protestant origins, is very chant-like in places (the Benedictus being a prime example). It makes extreme demands on the singers, especially in terms of range (even the alto part has a range of two octaves!), and is thus well suited to The Sixteen, imbued as it is with inherent virtuosity and an especially augmented and voluptuous mezzo-soprano section on this recording!

Rob Macdonald, bass

J.S. BACH  Kyrie eleison II (from Mass in B minor BWV 232)

After the monumental opening ‘Kyrie eleison’, and the lyrical, almost joyful, duet ‘Christe eleison’, Bach moves to stern chromatic counterpoint, with a subject which is not the same, but similar to, B-A-C-H (in modern notation B flat-A-C-B natural) which he used in The Art of Fugue. The Gloria follows this Kyrie immediately. Bach is a superb dramatist – towards the end of this movement we see the trumpets getting ready, warming up their instruments: bang, into the glorious D major of the Gloria!

Alastair Ross, organ & harpsichord

G.P. da PALESTRINA  Ave Maria

Apart from The Sixteen, most of my singing is as a Lay Clerk at Westminster Cathedral. Our diet there is composed primarily of plainsong and music dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary – Palestrina’s Ave Maria combines the two perfectly, inspired from the start by the themes of the plainsong antiphon.

Ian Aitkenhead, alto

Thomas TALLIS  Miserere nostri

Miserere nostri – ‘probably the best piece in the world’.

I love singing this piece. Mark Dobell and I usually sing together on the alto line (sounds much nicer when sung by a tenor…). It’s quite challenging to sing as there are a couple of extremely long phrases. Both of us always try to do them in one breath. Next time you come to see us sing this, take a look at Mark and myself and see if you can spot when we both puff out our chests filled with air and then gradually turn blue as we near the end of the phrase…

Jeremy Budd, tenor

Henry PURCELL  O sing unto the Lord (from O sing unto the Lord Z 44)

This verse anthem contains solo sections written for the bass, the Revd John Gostling. It is evident from other works that he had an exceptional, deep voice so as soloist in this piece the challenge is to sing with as much gravitas as possible while retaining the agility to manoeuvre around the florid, Italianate passages.

Ben Davies, bass
G.F. HANDEL

And the glory of the Lord
(from Messiah HWV 56)

If there is a conductor's equivalent to the well-timed cover drive, then the gesture that Harry Christophers infallibly delivers as the sopranos reach their climactic top A in And the glory of the Lord is it. Easy, graceful and highly effective.

Mark Padmore, tenor

Olivier MESSIAEN

Cinq Rechants: I

Few professional singers have the opportunity to sing this towering monument of 20th-century music for vocal ensemble even once in a career, let alone several times, and with enough rehearsal time to get inside the challenging harmonic and rhythmic world of this most original of composers. But for The Sixteen's recording, Harry gathered together an ensemble of just such privileged performers, with the added bonus of the special esprit de corps that he always fostered right from the group's beginnings. And the juxtaposition of Cinq Rechants on the album with Jolivet's Epithalamion and Daniel-Lesur's Le cantique des cantiques, all written for the ground-breaking Ensemble Marcel Couraud, was a very considerable cherry on the cake!

Jeremy White, bass

James MACMILLAN

The Gallant Weaver

The importance of James MacMillan's music in the lives of The Sixteen and for Harry and me is unsurpassable. Without his music our world would be a lesser place: thus The Gallant Weaver stands out as a firm favourite and was the choice for our son's wedding in 2018.

Veronica Christophers, Trustee

Alonso LOBO

Versa est in luctum

Versa est in luctum was written for the obsequies of Philip II of Spain in 1598. We sang it in San Jerónimo el Real in Madrid without being aware that this was the very church where Philip's funeral had been held. The audience were visibly moved, but we only learned afterwards of its significance to them.

Tim Jones, bass

Francis POULENC

Sanctus
(from Mass in G FP 89)

Poulenc's Sanctus is a beguiling mix of glacial purity and visceral passion. The rhythmic pulsing of the text builds up to an emotional outpouring in the 'Hosanna', with the top sopranos and tenors pushed to their vocal extremes. The vast spacing between the upper and lower voices creates a sound that is both raw and glorious.

Julie Cooper, soprano

Claudio MONTEVERDI

Gloria
(from Messa a quattro voci SV 190)

The composer and contemporary of Monteverdi, Agostino Agazzari, wrote in 1607 an invaluable continuo playing treatise. I've always enjoyed this quote:

“The lute in the ensemble should play with nice inventions and diversity, sometimes beating and with sweet repetitions, sometimes with long passagi...And the lutenist should not do as some, who have a swift hand but little knowledge and do nothing else from beginning to end other than tic and tic and tic, which is in truth an evil for the listener.”

David Miller, lute & theorbo
Herr, nun lässest du deinen Diener (SWV 432)

The glorious sounds of sackbutts and voices resounding in St Augustine's Church as they celebrate Simeon's recognition of Christ. Can we really have recorded that 20 years ago? This is fine music-making, and I have so many happy memories. I can hear voices of friends who have remained special ever since. We were more carefree then, and had fun. But even so, we and Harry knew we could do a great job bringing this music to life. It's astonishing what The Sixteen has achieved in 40 years. Happy birthday!

James Gilchrist, tenor

Benedictio et claritas

Marcin Mielczewski – hardly a household name, but a composer of real quality and one who was a joy to discover as part of our series exploring music of the Polish Baroque. The first chord of Benedictio et claritas is a statement of intent, telling us to sit up and listen. The swagger and dancing steps of the instrumental introduction wonderfully set up the majestic impact of the choir’s first entry which, somewhat unusually, proves to be a refrain or ritornello that reappears after the more intimate, florid solo passages. The textural splendour of the combined forces evokes the sound world of Andrea and Giovanni Gabrieli, showing how much Mielczewski learned from his Italian forbears.

Eamonn Dougan, bass & Associate Conductor

Dixit Dominus (from Vespers K 339)

Psalm 110 is the psalm which promises that the Lord will make your enemies your footstool: ‘Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies.’ Oliver Cromwell had a special liking for it. But abstruse theology has reduced the violence to metaphor and made it feel right for Vespers, the sunset celebration. Innumerable composers have had a go at it: Handel, Monteverdi, Scarlatti, Vivaldi (twice), Rachmaninoff and others. There’s a bit of Richard Rodgers’ version in The Sound of Music. Mozart came to it at a difficult moment. He had failed to make his mark in Paris. His mother had died there. Back in Salzburg he concentrated on his Vespers commission but an unmistakable operatic feeling infuses this militant psalm – and gives The Sixteen the opportunity to show off their thunderous side.

Anthony Smith CBE, Trustee

Balulalow (from A Ceremony of Carols, Op. 28)

I never tire of Britten’s A Ceremony of Carols and it seems to stay fresh and magical every year. I’ve been lucky to accompany a wide variety of choirs in this wonderful work, but a performance which I treasure was one of my first, with a choir of ‘ordinary’ schoolchildren from Hastings, directed by a lovely lady called Mary Spreadbury. The children sang their hearts out, they really loved the music, and the lullaby Balulalow, with its beautiful, haunting melody and lovely rocking harp accompaniment, alternating minor and major harmonies, was especially poignant for me as I was expecting my first child – who was born at Christmas a fortnight later!

Frances Kelly, harp

Adam lay ybounden

Howard Skempton came to hear us perform his Adam lay ybounden at Kings Place, when we sang it countrywide as part of the 2015 Christmas tour. It was a favourite among audience and singers alike for its succinct and whimsical otherworldliness; moreover, we sopranos like it when we nab the tune...

Katy Hill, soprano
Morten LAURIDSEN  O magnum mysterium

Morten Lauridsen's O magnum mysterium is a joy to sing and audiences have absolutely loved it when it's been in our Christmas concert programme. It has beautiful long lines and sumptuous harmonies which give it a warmth and romanticism that is perfect for the season – a gorgeous hug of a piece!

Kirsty Hopkins, soprano

Benjamin BRITTEN  This little Babe (from A Ceremony of Carols, Op. 28)

I love the energy and urgent rhythm of Britten's setting of Robert Southwell's call to arms. Both men endured their own wars: Britten's in 1942, and Southwell ministered the Catholic faith during the English Reformation and was killed for it. Shakespeare also quoted Southwell.

Dame Sarah Connolly, alto

G.F. HANDEL  Your voices tune (from Alexander's Feast HWV 75)

Alexander's Feast is an incredible tribute to the emotional power of music. I remember playing it for the first time in the Sheldonian Theatre with The Sixteen in 2006 and being deeply moved by this vividly colourful work. It's easy to see why this is one of Handel's most enduring works as he takes us on a journey from sorrow and devotion to fierce revenge and then, ultimately, divine joy.

Sarah Sexton, violin & Leader

Our enormous thanks go to the following people who contributed to the fabulous recordings on this album:

- Susan Addison
- Ian Aitkenhead
- Ildiko Allen
- Emma Aller
- Siobhán Armstrong
- Jonathan Arnold
- Caroline Ashton
- Alex Ashworth
- Paul Badley
- Philip Bainbridge
- Sophie Barber
- Robin Barda
- Benjamin Bayl
- Rachel Beckett
- Lisa Beckley
- Katarina Bengston
- Simon Berridge
- David Bevan
- Jeremy Birchall
- Simon Birchall
- David Blackadder
- Robin Blaze
- John Bowen
- Michael Brain
- Emma Brain-Gabbott
- Matthew Brook
- David Brooker
- Zoe Brookshaw
- Sally Bruce-Payne
- Jeremy Budd
- Michael Bundy
- Peter Burrows
- Margaret Cameron
- Andrew Carwood
- Teresa Caudle
- Philip Cave
- Harry Christophers
- Fiona Clarke
- David Clegg
- Roger Cleverdon
- Jane Coe
- Daniel Collins
- Jane Compton
- Sarah Connolly
- Gary Cooper
- Julie Cooper
- Marc Ashley Cooper
- Joshua Cooter
- David Cox
- Libby Crabtree
- Graham Cracknell
- Patrick Craig
- Joseph Crouch
- Laurence Cummings
- Philip Daggett
- Huw Daniel
- Angus Davidson
- Grace Davidson
- Ben Davies
- Robert Davies
- Simon Davies
- Ruth Dean
- Catherine Denley
- Matthew Dixon
- Mark Dobell
- Eamonn Dougan
- Julia Doyle
- Claire Duff
- Sally Dunkley
- Stephanie Dyer
- Richard Earle
- Daniel Edgar
- James Ellis
- Julian Empnett
- Robert Evans

20

21
Robert Farley
Peter Fender
Cherry Forbes
Adrian France
Charles Fulbrook
Miranda Fulleylove
Christine Garratt
Charles Gibbs
James Gilchrist
Andrew Giles
Miles Golding
Jane Gordon
Helen Groves
Natanya Hadda
Camilla Harris
Steven Harrold
Micaela Haslam
Rosemary Hatterell
Stephanie Heichelheim
Katie Heller
Rachel Helliwell
Rebecca Hickey
Alison Hill
Katy Hill
Lynne Hirst
Benedict Hoffnung
Jimmy Holliday
Kirsty Hopkins

Lucinda Houghton
Thomas Hunt
John Hutchins
Hugo Hymas
Utako Ikeda
Annette Isserlis
Sally Jackson
Robin Jeffrey
Nicola Jenkin
Robert Johnson
Andrea Jones
Rebecca Jones
Simon Jones
Stephen Jones
Tim Jones
Martin Kelly
Frances Kelly
Nicola-Jane Kemp
Alexandra Kidgell
William Knight
Carys Lane
Catherine Latham
Michael Lees
Sarah Leonard
Nia Lewis
Matthew Long
Tim Lyons
Robert Macdonald

Duncan MacKenzie
Neil MacKenzie
Amanda MacNamara
Elin Manahan Thomas
Ruth Massey
Michael McCarthy
Rory McCleery
Sophie McKenna
Hannah McLaughlin
Edward McMullan
Claire Mera-Nelson
Rebecca Miles
Deborah Miles-Johnson
David Miller
William Missin
Charlotte Mobbs
Sarah Moffatt
Roger Montgomery
Amy Moore
Emilia Morton
Nicholas Mulroy
Iwona Muszynska
Abigail Newman
Philip Newton
Paul Nicholson
Paul Nieman
Jane Norman
Ellen O’Dell

Helen Orsler
Graham O’Sullivan
Rebecca Outram
Mark Padmore
Nicholas Parle
Jean Paterson
Clare Penkey
Julian Perkins
Christopher Pigram
Edward Pooley
Kim Porter
Katie Pringle
Ruth Provost
William Purefoy
Christopher Purves
Eligio Luis Quinteiro
Noel Rainbird
Tom Raskin
Jonathan Rees
Valerie Reid
Walter Reiter
Helen Roberts
Nicholas Robertson
Anthony Robson

Jane Rogers
Alastair Ross
David Roy
Christopher Royall
Carolyn Sampson
Claire Sansom
Stephen Saunders
Anneke Scott
Marion Scott
Imogen Seth-Smith
Sarah Sexton
Zoe Shevlin
Nigel Short
Alison Smart
Angus Smith
Joy Smith
Pauline Smith
Jan Spencer
Susanna Spicer
Siona Spillett
David Staff
Francis Steele
Crispian Steele-Perkins

BBC Philharmonic, Academy of St Martin in the Fields
Mark Brown, Mike Clements, Andrew Connolly, Mike Hatch,
Anthony Howell, Andrew Keener, Julian Millard, Raphael Mouterde

Hilary Stock
Julian Stocker
William Thorpe
Hannah Tibell
Claire Toms
Caroline Trevor
Robin Tyson
William Unwin
Helen Verney
Matthew Vine
Joseph Walters
Ian Watson
Andrew Watts
Henrietta Wayne
Daniel Weitz
Jeremy West
Emily White
Jeremy White
Andrew Wicks
Sioned Williams
Ian Wilson
David Woodcock
Adam Woolf
Stuart Young
40 tracks are taken from the following recordings by The Sixteen available on CORO:

CD1
1. COR16103  Handel: Saul
2. COR16096  James MacMillan: Miserere
3. COR16133  Palestina Volume 6
4. COR16001  The Flowering of Genius
5. COR16069  Bright Orb of Harmony
6. COR16118  The Queen of Heaven
7. COR16126  Monteverdi: Vespers of 1610
8. COR16020  A Golden Age
9. COR16015  Tavener: Ikon of Light
10. COR16140  The Deer’s Cry
11. COR16111  An Immortal Legacy
12. COR16077  Ceremony and Devotion
13. COR16134  Poetry in Music
14. COR16163  Purcell: Royal Welcome Songs for King Charles II
15. COR16062  Handel: Messiah
16. COR16023  La Jeune France
17. COR16134  Poetry in Music
18. COR16128  Flight of Angels
19. COR16149  Francis Poulenc
20. COR16160  Monteverdi: Messa a quattro voci et salmi Vol. II

CD2
1. COR16013  à la Gloire de Dieu
2. COR16029  Frank Martin
3. COR16044  J.S. Bach: Mass in B minor
4. COR16091  Palestina Volume 1
5. COR16140  The Deer’s Cry
6. COR16163  Purcell: Royal Welcome Songs for King Charles II
7. COR16062  Handel: Messiah
8. COR16023  La Jeune France
9. COR16134  Poetry in Music
10. COR16128  Flight of Angels
11. COR16149  Francis Poulenc
12. COR16160  Monteverdi: Messa a quattro voci et salmi Vol. II
13. COR16036  Schütz: Musikalische Exequien
14. COR16153  Marcin Mielczewski
15. COR16057  Faure: Requiem
16. COR16034  Britten: A Ceremony of Carols
17. COR16146  Song of the Nativity
18. COR16146  Song of the Nativity
19. COR16034  Britten: A Ceremony of Carols
20. COR16028  Handel: Alexander’s Feast

For more information visit www.thesixteen.com

HARRY CHRISTOPHERS

Harry Christophers stands among today’s great champions of choral music. In partnership with The Sixteen, the ensemble he founded almost 40 years ago, he has set benchmark standards for the performance of everything from late medieval polyphony to important new works by contemporary composers. His international influence is supported by more than 150 recordings and has been enhanced by his work as Artistic Director of Boston’s Handel and Haydn Society and as guest conductor worldwide.

The Sixteen’s soundworld, rich in tonal variety and expressive nuance, reflects Christophers’ determination to create a vibrant choral instrument from the blend of adult professional singers. Under his leadership The Sixteen has established its annual Choral Pilgrimage to cathedrals, churches and other UK venues, created the Sacred Music series for BBC television, and developed an acclaimed period-instrument orchestra. Highlights of their recent work include an Artist Residency at Wigmore Hall, a large-scale tour of Monteverdi’s Vespers of 1610, and the world premiere of Sir James MacMillan’s Stabat mater; their future projects, meanwhile, comprise a new series devoted to Purcell and an ongoing survey of Handel’s dramatic oratorios.
Whether performing a simple medieval hymn or expressing the complex musical and emotional language of a contemporary choral composition, The Sixteen does so with qualities common to all great ensembles. Tonal warmth, rhythmic precision and immaculate intonation are clearly essential to the mix. But it is the courage and intensity with which The Sixteen makes music that speak above all to so many people.

The Sixteen gave its first concert in 1979 under the direction of Founder and Conductor Harry Christophers CBE. Their pioneering work since has made a profound impact on the performance of choral music and attracted a large new audience, not least as 'The Voices of Classic FM' and through BBC television’s Sacred Music series.

The voices and period-instrument players of The Sixteen are at home in over five centuries of music, a breadth reflected in their annual Choral Pilgrimage to Britain’s great cathedrals and sacred spaces, regular appearances at the world’s leading concert halls, and award-winning recordings for The Sixteen’s CORO and other labels.

Recent highlights include the world premiere of James MacMillan’s Stabat mater, commissioned for The Sixteen by the Genesis Foundation, an ambitious ongoing series of Handel oratorios, and a debut tour of China.