7.1. Statutory right of withdrawal

The buyer has the statutory right to withdraw from the agreement and to return the ordered product during a trial period of 14 days after having received the product, without having to state a reason for the withdrawal (the statutory right of withdrawal).

The statutory right of withdrawal only applies in the case that the product and its original packaging can be returned in the same state as when received. The buyer is only allowed to unpack and/or to use the ordered product as far as is needed to be able to determine whether he/she wants to keep the product. The right of withdrawal does not apply to customized products (i.e. Rosey) and products that are not suitable for return due to hygiene reasons (i.e. earrings).

Please note that: in case the product was delivered in a damaged or incomplete state, the buyer has the obligation to inform Rosefield Support Team thereof and await further instructions (see art. 6.2. and 6.3).

The buyer is responsible for the return shipment of the product and bears all the risks related to the return shipment. Rosefield advises the buyer to return a product by insured shipment and in a sealed packaging. In case an insured return shipment goes missing, gets damaged or in case the reception of a returned shipment is denied (for example, in case no valid signature can be shown by the carrier), the buyer then has the option to hold the carrier liable. The buyer, as the sender of the return shipment, must start the complaint procedure for any issue that may occur with the return shipment. The buyer must keep the (official, digital) receipt of his/her return shipment that contains the tracking information.

The shipment costs of a return shipment within the trial period are borne by the buyer.

In case all the conditions applicable to the statutory right of withdrawal are met, Rosefield will credit the buyer within 14 days after receiving the return shipment (no credit applies for costs of the return shipment). Any credit due as a result of a returned product, will be credited to the account that the buyer used to pay the original order.

8. Warranty and repair

If Rosefield finds that repair or replacement of the goods is not (or no longer) possible or disproportionately problematic, Rosefield will be entitled to credit the price received for the goods concerned, without being liable for any further damages.

The shipment costs of a return shipment for a warranty request are borne by Rosefield.

In case of force majeure on the part of Rosefield, its obligations shall be suspended. If the force majeure lasts more than three (3) months, Rosefield and the buyer are both entitled to terminate the non-feasible parts of the agreement.

In performing its obligations arising from those terms and conditions, Rosefield follows its Privacy Policy

Rosefield complies with the privacy regulations, as recorded in the "Wet Bescherming Persoonsgegevens" (the "Dutch Personal Data Protection Act"). Rosefield guarantees that all personal data will be handled with care. The buyer's personal data will not be shared with any third party, except for purposes of fulfilling the order or for repair purposes.
