

SUPERHUMANOIDS

EXHIBITIONISTS

In the summer of 2010, Superhumanoids was birthed under the hazy air and bright blue skies of Los Angeles. A fascination for electronic sounds, instruments, pedals, and more, aesthetically united Max, Sarah, and Cameron. Like a petri dish growing each day, the band spent their time together intertwining and experimenting with their R&B upbringings and love for pop music.

Exhibitionists is the soundtrack to the last moments of dusk in LA. With swooning guitars, glimmering air, soaring melodies, the setting sun, and melting keyboards, something about the whole thing makes your breath stop short. With each synth and guitar sound being completely made from scratch, the record brings a homegrown feel that encapsulates the thumps of the beating heart and lulls of swaying palm fronds from LA. Despite being wrapped in an electronic blanket, the trio unravels each song's core to take the listener on a journey that highlights the living R&B undertones and driving groove that brings to light the soul of the record. What is found in the sticky air of the city of angels is found here in Exhibitionists, to ease between the spaces of your body, make you dance, and bring you home.

"Superhumanoids balance shimmering '80s new wave with sharp-elbowed observations about doubt, love and longing."

BILLBOARD

"There is something electrifying about what they do."

NYLON MAGAZINE

"Summer break, free spirit music"

FILTER MAGAZINE

"Calming new-wave-cum-dreampop, lush with impressively-ranged male and female duets and an alloy of live and synthesized instruments that pushes each note to chilly infinity"

RCDR LBL

"Very dreamy-sounding Los Angeles electronic trio"

THE FADER

"Romantic dream-pop on a cloud, beaming a blend of Talking Heads-y New Wave, atmospheric electronics, and beautiful boy-girl vocals"
