Character Analysis: Opal is a kind and compassionate kid. I know this because she takes in Winn-Dixie with no hesitation. I also know that she is new to Naomi, Florida, and that she lives with only her dad because her mom is gone.

Comprehension and Analysis:

1. Opal has compassion for Winn-Dixie and doesn't want him to get into trouble or get taken to the pound, so she instinctively protects him.
2. Opal calls her dad "the preacher" because he spends so much time preaching, praying, and working at the church and not as much time just simply being her daddy. So she calls him the preacher because he seems more like just a preacher than her dad. I think this shows that there is some distance in their relationship, and that maybe Opal is missing some closeness that she longs for.
3. Opal asks the preacher to tell her ten things about her mama. I think she asks this question because she has been wondering about her mama and missing her more than she did when she was younger.

Beyond: Possible answers: They're both lonely. They both don't have much family. Opal has the preacher but she doesn't have a mama and neither does Winn-Dixie. Neither of them have friends.
